Pennsylvania Dairy Distinction Winners Announced

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — With June dairy month activities completed and July ice cream month underway, the selection of Pennsylvania's Dairy of Distinction winners has also been completed. The Dairy of Distinction awards program recognizes dairy farm families that maintain a clean, well-kept farm. The idea behind this beautification program is that good looking farms help give a good impression of the source of the dairy products available in the grocery store.

Run by volunteers in 10 districts across the state, the local committees select up to 10 dairy farms in each district that meet the stringent requirements of the score card used by the program. A team of local judges visits each farm that has applied for the recognition and makes a roadside inspection.

Each year, Lancaster Farming supports the state program by providing an 11x14 farm portrait print to each winning farm in the state. The local committees take the photographs and the portraits are made in time to be presented at the Dairy of Distinction's annual meeting at Ag Progress Days at Rock Springs in August. In addition, plans call for a special section to be part of the August 3 issue that will feature the farm photographs and some points of interest about each winning farm.

District 11: Harold and Marlyn Hill, Sandy Lake; Ron Bem, Union City; Ronald J. Yaple, Waterford; Lawrence Popovich, Union City; George Brown, Cambridge Springs; Roger and Mary Bly, Enthusiasts Attend National Jersey Convention In Record Numbers

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

HAGERSTOWN, Md.

— More than 700 Jersey cattle enthusiasts showed up here for the 123rd national convention of the American Jersey Cattle Club and the 33rd meeting of the National All-Jersey Inc. last weekend, setting records for attendance.

The East Coast location of the national convention at the Hagerstown Ramada Inn and Convention center proved to be a popular one, with state organizations from Maryland and Virginia serving as host.

Members from all over the United States showed for the five days of activities, ranging from dinner theater, farm tours, shopping tours, historic tours (the area is heavy with Civil War memorials), workshops, seminars, meetings, slide shows, get-togethers, national heifer sale, junior activities . . .

And the message from club officers and organizational administrators was optimistic, despite the oft-mentioned low and unstable milk prices.

During the Monday business meeting of the American Jersey Cattle Club, Harold B. Wright, president, told members that they should be happy with the trends with dairying with Jersey cattle in the United States, and to continue to work hard to improve the breed's efficiency and quality.

"The year 1990 was a good one for most dairy farmers. The price for 3.5 (percent fat) milk in the federal order system reached $14.69 per hundred weight by February 1990. This was tempered by the severe drop in prices at the end of the year," Wright said.

"We should also be mindful that many Jersey owners were paid from 10 cents to $2 per hundred-weight more than other dairy farmers, because of end product pricing, cheese yield dollars, protein bonus or multiple component pricing," he said.

Wright told the group to not

Ice Cream Promotion Goes Downtown

PHILADELPHIA — Why would nearly 20,000 men, women and children stand in line, for three hours, under a blazing hot noonday sun, in downtown Philadelphia?

For ice cream — what else! It was ice cream and frozen yogurt — all you could eat — in cones, in a dish with cookies and sprinkles, or drizzled with Hershey's chocolate or strawberry syrup or two scoops floating in a foamy seat of Barq's Root Beer, and it was all FREE. The possibilities were endless and so was the ice cream at the fifth annual Philadelphia ice cream festival, Everyday Is Sundae, sponsored by the dairy farmers of the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association.

Everyday Is Sundae celebrates June as Dairy Month and kicks off July as National Ice Cream Month at Independence Hall, in downtown Philadelphia. The 1991 festival was held Wednesday, June 26. The event gives ice cream manufacturers the opportunity to put forth their best advertisement — their product — and they put right into the consumer's hand. They are sure that once the consumer tries their product they will purchase it the next time they go to the grocery store.

Trucklot buying interest was fairly active, particularly on light supplies of legs, leg quarters and wings. Boneless skinless breasts remained fully adequate with light spotty trading in the 180's. Whole breasts were spotty but about adequate. A lack of sufficient trucking in distant shipping channels was disrupting activity.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

JULY 8-14, 1991

Beware cornscares air.

July 8, 1796, the first passport is issued by the State Department to Francis Maria Barrere. July 9, 1850, Millard Fillmore succeeds to the Oval Office after the death of President Zachary Taylor. July 9, 1872, John F. Blondel of Thomaston, Maine, patents the doughnut cutter. July 10, 1890, Wyoming becomes the forty-fourth state, and the first state to grant women the right to vote under the U.S. Constitution. You cannot teach a man anything; you can only help him to find it within himself. — Galileo

Ask the Old Farmer: Where does the phrase, "take the rag off the bush" come from, and what does it mean? N.P., Okla.

It means to excel. It was originally a marksman's term for obvious reasons.

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: Sunny with a few showers inland, followed by a midweek change to heavy rain. The weekend brings clear skies and seasonably hot weather.

Greater New York-New Jersey: A variable week for weather. First sunny and seasonable, then rainy and milder, and finally sunny and warm again.

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Clear and hot through midweek, then showers arrive and temperatures drop appreciably. The weekend is sunny and pleasant.

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Clear and very hot for most of the week. Clouding up on Friday, with heavy rain west and south, and milder temperatures.

Farmers Provide American Way Of Life

We were reminded again this week as we celebrated independence day that many people in the history of our country have contributed to the blessings we enjoy. The most recent persons who come to mind are those who gave of themselves in Desert Storm. Thomas Jefferson said that freedom must be continually earned. And our soldiers, sailors and airmen proved that again during this conflict in the Middle East.

At this time of year we think of what the American system really stands for: "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights. That among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

While we hear a lot about the new freedoms in the Soviet Union, they still do not have enough to eat. If you have life and happiness, you really need to have enough food. That's where the American farmer has done so well for us. And the agricultural enterprises are of such importance to the American way of life that they also must be listed as important to our freedom.

Back in 1776, when our forefathers signed the Declaration of Independence, nine out of every ten Pennsylvanians were farmers, self-sufficient and proud. Today, thanks to technological advancements--and the same strong work ethic in which those first Pennsylvanians believed--one farmer, on average, provides the food needs of 114 others.

There is no doubt to the power of the Pennsylvania agriculture and food industry. It's our number one industry, bringing in $3.3 billion of farm income and leading to more than $32 billion in related business activity every year. Agriculture helps create jobs for 1.2 million people--one out of every five Pennsylvanians.

The farmers who provide us with such an abundance of harvest really form the base of the economy that we have come to call the American way of life.

THE TIME

To Understand Nutrient Management

The nutrient management bill is making its way through the legislature. The House of Representatives have approved the bill and the Senate is now considering it.

This piece of legislation will have an impact on many of our state's farms. The current bill will require farmers to recognize the plant nutritional value of animal manures.

By developing nutrient management plans, farmers will be balancing the crop nutrient requirements with the fertilizer and manure he applies. By developing this plan, the farmer should be increasing his income by eliminating the unnecessary purchase of plant nutrients while reducing the possibility of contaminating the ground and surface water.

Animal agriculture is a very important segment of the commonwealth's agriculture. To keep animal agriculture growing in the state will require all farmers working together to utilize the valuable manure produced by animals.

With a better understanding of plant nutrition, how manure improves soil structure, and the amount of plant nutrients provided by manure, farmers will use manure wisely in their cropping systems. However, it will take cooperation among all farmers to make nutrient management work.

To Be Alert For Field Fires

The recent dry weather has increased the chance for field fires. Dust accumulation on gasoline engines will cause engines to overheat and catch on fire. Also, sparks from engines, cigarettes, matches and fires will set dry weeds, pastures, and small grain fields on fire.

ment (combines, tractors, hay balers, etc.), you will need to clean the dust off your engine several times a day, make sure the air intakes for the radiator are clean, maintain proper water level in the radiator, make sure the fan belt is tight and not worn, and carry a fire extinguisher.

While operating your equipment, keep an eye on your engine to make sure it is not on fire. If you smoke or do any burning, make sure any stray sparks will not accidentally start a fire.

To Review

Emergency Procedures

Last week I participated in nuclear power plant emergency drill. I have a concern most farmers would not know what to do if they would be ordered to evacuate their farms.

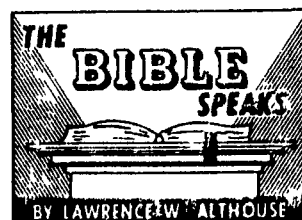

In case of a nuclear power plant problem, bring all animals inside and make arrangements to provide them with automatic waterers and self feeding. In the event of an evacuation, only one person will be allowed to re-enter and only for a brief period of time.

With two nuclear power plants close to Lancaster County, every farmer would be effected in the event of a power plant problem. Take time to read the material provided to you by the power companies and develop an emergency plan for your farm.

Also, have posted next to your phone the numbers for the fire company, ambulance, poison control center, doctor, and police. With this list of phone numbers should be written a set of detailed directions to your farm.

In the event of an emergency, time is a very important factor. These phone numbers and directions could save a lot of time and even a life. Take time now and instruct every member of your family on what to do in case of an emergency.

WHAT DOES IT TAKE?
July 7, 1991

Background Scripture: Nehemiah 1-2.

Devotional Reading: Psalms 122:1-19.

What does it take to get something done in this world? Tonight on television there were visual reports of the millions who are dying of starvation in Africa. Equally disturbing were the reports of great multitudes of people in Bangladesh who are the victims of a great typhoon.

The commentator said that so far, the Western democracies had not evidenced much interest in helping them. It is ironic to recollect that just a few months ago we spent millions of dollars to help the relatively-well-fixed Kuwaitis, but, as the commentator noted, the people of Bangladesh and Sudan do not have any oil "to protect."

Have you ever noticed how easy it is to raise money to kill people and how hard to find money to keep people alive? Our country united in its anger and hostility toward one man, Saddam Hussein. If only we could just as surely unite in compassion for the nameless people who have no power.

MOBILIZING TO HEAL

A whole nation was mobilized to wage war with the most advanced technology the world has ever seen. So, how do we mobilize our nation to use some of that technology to wage peace? Maybe we can't solve starvation, disease, ignorance addiction, and crime. But if we can send guided missiles to kill so effectively, can't we at least make some dent in these human miseries?

So, what does it take? It takes a person like Nehemiah, someone who, when confronted with a particular failing of our society, can respond with deep sense of sorrow. Through Hanani, one of his brethren, he receives the devastating news that Jerusalem was desolate and defenseless: "When I heard these words I sat down and wept, and mourned for days..." (1:4). If Nehemiah lived today, he wouldn't switch channels just because he wouldn't want to watch something that is unsettling.

Nehemiah did more than weep — he prayed: "...and I continued fasting and praying before the God of heaven." This evening, after the TV report was finished, it occurred to me that problems like mass starvation and others rarely get into my prayers. I pray for my family, my friends, and for those who ask me. But how often do I pray for the nameless starving, homeless, sick, destitute, lonely, and imprisoned. Not very often. Is it just because it is more natural to pray for those whom we know in some way, or is it because we know unconsciously that to pray for these people might place upon us the obligation to do something about it?

Nehemiah realized that the sad condition of Jerusalem was due to the sins of his people: "I now pray before thee day and night for the people of Israel...confessing the sins...which we have sinned against thee" (1:6). Most of our human tragedies are the result of human sin and it takes repentance if we are to do something about them.

Nehemiah was an important person who used his position to get something done. Hanani was a person of lesser stature who also did what he could do: he told Nehemiah. Without him, there likely would have been no decree from the King.

Theft Watch

(A column for farmers and agribusiness to report missing and found machinery, tools and livestock. Call the news department at (717) 394-3047 with these reports.)

• Earlier this month, a total of $3,600 value in products was taken from Leinbach Farm Supply at Shippensburg. The theft included six chain saws (Stihl), and four trimmers. An air conditioner was pushed out of the wall and entry was made through the whole. The Carlisle/Cumberland State Police have been notified. Anyone who knows about these missing items should call John Leinbach at (717) 532-5511.

• A number of items were taken from the back of a truck at Gap Auction last week: socket wrench set, spotlight, nylon bag, large blue first aid kit with blood pressure cuff, stethoscope, surgical kit and numerous other medical items. Donald Aikens is an ambulance volunteer and went to help someone when he discovered the loss. Anyone who knows anything about these items should call (215) 594-4196 day or (609) 358-7200 evening.

• On Tuesday night, June 18, a red, one and one-half ton, dump truck with high sides was stolen from the yard at Twin Oaks Farm and Nursery in Hillton Twp. in Bucks County. The truck is a 1985 Ford F-350 with a special snow plow on the front bumper. Good news: just before press time this week, the truck was reported found parked in a lot about 30 miles away. It was left in good condition.

• Douglas Reinhart, Chambersburg, Franklin County, had farm tools taken from his farm shop and two hydraulic cylinders removed from corn and hay choppers. Milk was also contaminated in the bulk tank. Anyone with information about this crime should call (717) 261-0927.

• Benjamin Shank, Holtwood, Lancaster County, had a Farmall M antique tractor driven out of the field in broad daylight. He thinks it may have been driven into the woods and left there. Anyone with information about this tractor should call (717) 284-4820.

Viking Ship Calcium Nitrate: vegetable nutrition the way you want it fertilizer 15.5-0-0 has been earning vegetable grower loyalty for more than forty years. In the field! Under weather conditions that often fail to cooperate! At harvest, when talk time is over and product promises are measured by results! Growers have found that Calcium Nitrate comes through.

Use Calcium Nitrate on your next crop. You will be pleased by the growth, yield and quality you see. The kind of profitable results achieved by vegetable growers across America, season after season, because of Calcium Nitrate's unique combination of nutrients:

Nitrate nitrogen for fast response. Better timing and control. Calcium Nitrate supplies nitrate, the non-acidifying nitrogen that's readily available for plant uptake. You'll see fast, uniform response with the precise feeding and timing you need for better growth and better crop management.See Your Fertilizer Dealer*Earlier, more uniform maturity.*Improved yield and quality.

Nitrate nitrogen gives the quick optimum response the crop needs and then "runs out." Elimination of residual nitrogen and salt problems promotes better yields, uniform maturity and harvest efficiency. One good thing leads to another when you fertilize with Calcium Nitrate.

Vital calcium: it helps your crop;helps your soil. Calcium Nitrate contains 19% water-soluble calcium. This vital nutrient, combined with nitrate nitrogen, provides crop benefits both above and below the ground. Young leaves, stalks, roots and fruit must have calcium for proper development. Adequate calcium in the fruit markedly improves harvest and shipping quality. This low-salt, non-acid source of nitrate and calcium is unmatched by any other nitrate fertilizer.Available in bag or bulk. Apply Calcium Nitrate straight or ask your dealer to include it in your vegetable fertilizer. You'll be glad you did!*As with any fertilizer application, consult your extension office or other advisory service for recommended practice that meets local crop and soil conditions.HYDRO AGRI

Members: This Report's PIP

PIP. That's short for Potential Identification Problems, and it's a new report being sent to members on official programs every spring and fall. What's it used for? Simply to alert members to possible identification problems with some of their animals before the semi-annual USDA genetic evaluations are done. That will give members the chance to correct those ID errors that could prevent their animals from being evaluated, or prevent their records from being used in bull proofs.

When you receive the report, which looks like the one shown below, check the information listed and if there are errors, let the records auditors in State College know right away. Just call 800-344-8378 (800-DHI-TEST) and talk with Gary or Dan. They'll be glad to help you.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's this week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania. Remember these are averages so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Keep Cows Cool

ESTON MARTZ

PSU Ag Info Services

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Keeping your dairy cows cool and comfortable during the dog days of summer can help ensure that their milk production remains steady.

"Good ventilation for dairy cows is critical during hot weather," said Stephen Spencer, professor of dairy and animal science in Penn State's College of Agriculture. "When temperatures rise and the cows are uncomfortable, they may respond by reducing their feed and dry matter intake. Subsequently, their milk production falls, too."

Spencer said that sometimes it is difficult to tell whether heat is making a cow uncomfortable.

"Cows seldom exhibit obvious symptoms of poor ventilation, except in brutally hot weather when they begin to pant," he said.

"Changes such as a reduction in dry matter intake can be subtle and hard to detect — until milk production falls off."

Instead of waiting for obvious symptoms to appear, make sure your cows' quarters are cool before they become uncomfortable.

"Get stagnant air out of the barn and let the cows breathe fresh air," Spencer said. "It's easy to use fans to augment your present ventilation system, and it's virtually impossible to move too much air into the barn."

One way dairy farmers can use fans to keep cows cool is by turning their barn into a "wind tunnel."

"Placing fans at intervals throughout the barn and opening the doors at either end can create a tunnel effect," Spencer said. "It moves the air through the barn and helps keep the cows comfortable."

This "wind tunnel" effect can thwart another source of cow discomfort — insects.

"If air is moving steadily through the barn, it will help reduce fly problems," Spencer said. "Flies don't like to be in the wind."

"Make sure free-stall barns have adequate side ventilation," he said. "Side panels usually are too small to provide adequate air movement."

Spencer said dairy farmers may want to consider new ventilation ideas such as curtain walls for free-stall barns.

"A number of farmers have replaced the side walls of their barns with curtains, which allow the whole side of the barn to be opened for ventilation," he said. "It makes a remarkable difference in the air and temperature conditions inside the barn."

Agents Need 'People Skills,' Says Retiring Extension Director

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff
HOLLIDAYSBURG (Blair Co.) — On the eve of retirement, Robert M. Hetrick still remembers the drought of 1961-1965. The drought the region faces now still doesn't stand up to those years. "It was tough back then. I don't think I've seen any years as bad as those," said Hetrick.

But meeting face to face with farmers, and trying to help them through both good and bad times during 28 years with the extension, utilized his training as a dairy farmer, experience as a Penn State agent, and, most importantly, abilities as a "people person" — skills essential to successful extension agents, according to Hetrick.

Hetrick will be honored at a special retirement dinner on Sat., July 20, at 7 p.m. at the Memorial Park, Martinsburg. Hetrick will be officially retiring as extension director on August 2. Those wishing to obtain tickets for the dinner should contact the extension at (814) 695-5541, ext. 210.

Family dairy farm

Robert M. Hetrick

town, Snyder Co., and operated his father's 140-acre farm with 48 dairy cattle. After earning his B.S. in ag education from Penn State in 1954, Hetrick was drafted into the U.S. army at the end of the Korean War. In 1956, Hetrick took over his family's dairy farm, until 1963 when, in the middle of the worst drought he's seen, he decided to join Penn State Extension in Lehigh Co. as assistant county agent. In 1965, Hetrick was promoted to associate agent in Lehigh. While at Lehigh Co., he provided educational leadership for the 4-H Club.

In 1971, Hetrick moved to Blair County as an agent and later became extension director.

In 1980, Hetrick was awarded the prestigious Distinguished Service Award from the National Association of County Agricultural Agents in Oklahoma City, Okla. His work in improving milk production in local dairy herds garnered him the recognition. His forage testing and feed programming have been used as educational tools in the county to increase herd production.

Hetrick's expertise, besides dairy, includes agronomic crops and fruit and vegetable production. Through the years, he coordinated a regional educational fruit program and worked with the six-county fruit growers association.

Toward specialization

He noted the trend toward specialization for county agents. Back then, he said, you had to be "jacks of all trades," and noted that counties today demand more specialization over a multi-county region.

The staff in Blair County includes a family living agent, 4-H coordinator, horticulture agent, and an urban Expanded Food Nutrition Program agent.

The most important element for an agent is "working with people one to one." He recommends that a college graduate who desires to be a county agent should not only be well-grounded in the subject matter, but should strive "to be a people person. Good communication is essential."

Hetrick is retiring because he wants to spend more time with his family. In July, he said he intends to pursue a part-time job and would enjoy doing more volunteer work.

"I depended on volunteers to do so much for extension," he said, "and now I'd like to pay them back."

ABS Names Shelton President

DE FOREST, WI — American Breeders Service (ABS), a unit of W.R. Grace & Co., has named Jack E. Shelton president and chief executive officer effective July 15.

Mr. Shelton, currently vice president of Grace's Feed Operations with responsibility for Farr Better Feeds and Walnut Grove Products, succeeds Dr. John J. Sullivan who will serve in the new position of ABS vice chairman.

"Earlier this year, Grace announced plans to sell its Feed Operations as part of the Company's strategy to tighten the focus of its businesses and pay down debt," said Dr. Robert E. Walton, chairman of Grace Animal Services, which consists of American Breeders Service, ABS Specialty Genetics, Farr Better Feeds and Walnut Grove Products.

"With the sale of the Feed Operations imminent, this management reorganization allows us to retain Jack Shelton's management skills; frees John Sullivan to focus on our increasing number of global business development opportunities; and completes the restructuring of our specialty agriculture businesses."

Mr. Shelton, 42, will continue to oversee the Feed Operations until an agreement to sell the businesses is reached. Prior to his current responsibilities, Mr. Shelton spent 18 years in various positions with Grace's Agricultural Chemicals division.

Dr. Sullivan has served as ABS president since January, 1989, replacing Dr. Walton. Under Dr. Sullivan's direction, ABS intensified its business development in the European Economic Community (EEC), Eastern Europe, the Soviet Union, Oceania, and developing countries, and improved worldwide sales. Dr. Sullivan will continue this effort with specific emphasis on the establishment of a global network of non-U.S. ABS stud sites. Prior to serving as ABS president, Dr. Sullivan was ABS vice president, production.

Founded in 1941 and headquartered in DeForest, Wisconsin, American Breeders Service markets dairy and beef cattle semen, providing the largest line-up of sires and related products throughout the United States and to more than 60 foreign countries. Since ABS began, more than 70 million cows have been inseminated by ABS.

Grace is the world's largest specialty chemicals company with leading positions in other niche businesses. Its 1990 sales exceeded $6.7 billion.

New York Dairy Farmers Must Vote Now

BATAVIA, NY — New York's dairy farmers will benefit from the commissioner of agriculture's proposed minimum milk price under the Rogers-Allen Act.

"All New York farmers will gain approximately 70 cents per hundredweight because of Commissioner Richard T. McGuire's proposed Rogers-Allen milk marketing order," said Carmen L. Ross, executive director of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA), which was instrumental in getting the order enacted.

"Now the critical issue is for dairy farmers to vote in favor of the order," Ross added.

McGuire announced the order on Wednesday, but before the order becomes law, dairy farmers must vote to accept the proposals. Ballots have been sent from the Department of Agriculture and Markets office, and all ballots must be back in Albany by July 9. Two-thirds of the state's dairy farmers must approve the order if it is to become law. Ballots that aren't returned count as a "no" vote.

Ross outlined several reasons farmers should vote "yes." These include:

* Farmers will receive more money for their milk. The order establishes a minimum price of $14.50 for Class I milk, which is used for fluid consumption. This is the price processors must pay.

The money will be distributed among all New York dairy farmers who sell their milk to plants within the state, no matter whether their milk is used for fluid consumption or turned into cheese or other dairy products.

* Farmers can protect their business from future price declines. The Rogers-Allen order would create an economic safety net for farmers for one year. It would protect them from volatile milk prices, but does not prevent the Class I price from rising above the fixed price of $14.50.

* Recent price gains will be lost without the Rogers-Allen order. New York's milk prices were increased on June 1 under an interim order, but these prices are only in effect until a decision is reached under Rogers-Allen. The interim prices will expire on August 1. If the Rogers-Allen order is not approved by dairy farmers, milk prices will drop.

* Farmers can demonstrate unity throughout the Northeast. For the first time, states in the Northeast have indicated a willingness to work together to help dairy farmers. Several states followed New York's lead to fix a Class I milk price higher than the federal order Class I milk prices. Disunity among dairy farmers in the Northeast can only result in lower milk prices.

* Farmers can exercise new power given to them. The New York Legislature recently amended the Rogers-Allen Act to permit dairy farmers to more quickly address disastrously low milk prices. By voting yes, farmers exercise this new power.

* Farmers select the best available option. The Rogers-Allen order temporarily raises milk prices and returns more money to dairy farmers. It provides an economic safety net for dairy farmers. It demonstrates New York dairy farmers' willingness and power to protect and save the dairy industry in this state and the Northeast.

"For all of these reasons, we urge farmers to vote 'yes' and to return their ballots as soon as they receive them," Ross said.

Dairy cooperatives will block vote for their members, so cooperative members should contact their officers to make sure the ballot is returned, Ross said.

RCMA worked several months to obtain this order for dairy farmers. Efforts started late last fall, when it was apparent milk prices were dropping to levels of the late 1970s. RCMA filed the petition to Commissioner McGuire, asking him to use his powers under the Rogers-Allen Act to set minimum prices for milk in New York State.

RCMA is the only dairy organization in the state that could file the petition, because the law requires the petitioning organization to represent more than 35 percent of the dairy farmers. RCMA's membership is more than 90 percent of the state's milk producers.

Once the petition was filed, RCMA began the massive job of lining up witnesses for the hearing to consider the petition. Twelve days of testimony were presented in Albany during April. Many dairy farmers testified that milk prices were below their cost of production. Bankers, farm equipment dealers, veterinarians and feed salesmen said the declining dairy industry was hurting the economy throughout upstate New York. All urged the commissioner to set the minimum prices.

Guernseys Return To Homeland

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — Genetics of top U.S. Guernsey cows went back to their homeland, the Island of Guernsey, in June, according to the American Guernsey Association (AGA).

Ten embryos out of outstanding pedigreed Guernsey cows were exported to Guernsey Island, having been sold to a syndicate headed by John Posnett, of Tarporley, Cheshire.

The selection of the cows was conducted by AGA of Reynoldsburg, Ohio. The syndicate had specific criteria such as high production, outstanding type and high index cows. The best available genetic matches to the criteria were made among those U.S. cows ready to be flushed at the time.

The AGA's Executive Secretary-Treasurer Erick Metzger worked closely with the syndicate, traveling to the Island of Guernsey and working with them in selecting productive additions to their herds.

Soon after returning to the United States, three initial selections were made by the syndicate with only two producing eggs.

AGA worked closely with American Marketing Service of Arlington, Va., in providing transportation and assuring all health requirements were met.

AGA also worked with an embryo transfer company in England to implant the embryos.

The new owners plan to breed the ET heifers to the best U.S. bulls available at the time and flush them as virgin heifers. Any ET bulls will be sampled.

Six embryos were exported from Yellow Creek Farm, owned by Truman Weaver, Goshen, Indiana; and four embryos came from Land of Living Farm, owned by John and Bonnie Ayars, Mechanicsburg, Ohio.

The embryos sent from Land of Living Farm are sired by Lincrest Telesar Buttermost out of a Very Good 88 Merit Fortune Agni with 17,530M, 5.2% 916F and 3.9% 680P at 1-11.

The maternal grandam, Walnut Corner Choice Kym, is an Excellent 93 Kellogg Minnies Choice with 6-05, 365D, 30,380M, 5.0% 1,528F, 3.6% 1,087P. "Kym" is also the dam of an EX-94 Jerico daughter with 2-10, 305D, 31,220M, 4.6% 1,434F, 3.5% 1,091P.

The six embryos from Yellow Creek Fayette Carmen-ET are sired by Lincrest Telesar Buttermost. "Carmen" is out of a Very Good-84 Dutch Mill Telesars Fayette and a Gold Star Dam with 19,890M, 4.3% 865F, 3.8% 748P, at 3-04.

The maternal grandam is an Excellent-90 Kellogg Minnies Choice Gold Star Dam with a lifetime record of 213,240M, 4.6% 9,724F, in 3,764 days. She was the recipient of the top Living Lifetime award for milk and butterfat production in 1990.

"Carmens" Two maternal brothers, hold the number 1 and 4th rating for active AI bulls for PTL.

Two Excellent-90 full sisters are both over 20,000M and 900F, one of which was among the cows exported to Brazil in May of this year.

Counties Receive Free Dairy Promotion Tickets

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — It's summertime and a great time for county fairs. Local groups are planning to seize this unique opportunity to promote their products to thousands of consumers.

The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council (ADADC) will provide local dairy promotion groups with Dairy Promotion Starter Kits to help kick off their county fairs this summer. These kits are designed to deliver a positive message about dairy products and ADADC, and attract consumers to the fair booths.

The free Starter Kit includes one large ADADC/dairy promotion banner, two dairy promotion posters, 100 growth charts for children, 200 cow coloring sheets, 200 ice cream bookmarks, and 500 "I Love Milk" stickers.

These packets will give local county groups a big head start on promoting real dairy products at their county fairs or other local activities. Dairy promoters exhibiting at county fairs may obtain these kits through ADADC district directors by mid-July.

For further information about these starter kits contact the ADADC office in Syracuse at (315) 472-9143. ADADC is a dairy promotion organization representing dairy farmers and producers in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Doyle Thomas Retires After 35 Years Of Service

MONTROSE (Susquehanna Co.) — Doyle Thomas, county extension director for Penn State Cooperative Extension of Susquehanna County, will be retiring as of June 30.

In order to honor Doyle for his 33 years of service to Susquehanna County, there will be a retirement reception on Sunday, July 7, at the VFW Hall in Montrose from 2 p.m.-5 p.m. There will be presentations made to Doyle starting at 3 p.m. A light buffet lunch is included in the $3 registration fee.

Doyle came to Susquehanna County in September of 1958 as the agronomy and 4-H agent. He became county extension director in 1976.

After graduation from Penn State University in 1951 with a B.S. in agronomy, he served as an extension agent in Westmoreland County for two years. Between September of 1953 and August of 1958, he worked on his family's farm in Columbia County, primarily growing crops and vegetables.

In September of 1958, Doyle relocated to Susquehanna County, where he was assigned as the agronomy/4-H agent and has worked in both of these areas throughout his extension career. He obtained a M.S. in agronomy from Penn State University in 1969.

Doyle has been very active in ag land preservation since 1981. Because of his efforts, 25 of 27 Susquehanna County townships have worked on setting up ag security areas, of which 23 are now secured. He was also instrumental in starting the Susquehanna County Ag Easement Board, which purchases development rights from farmers in order to help preserve Susquehanna County farmland.

Between 1961-1966, he worked extensively with the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) demonstration program. Several farms were on this program to yield much-needed fertilizer, and fertility and farm management information for them as well as for the university. These farms were also the site for several county demonstrations and field days.

Because of the importance of good agronomy practices, much work has been done in this area through demonstrations, variety trials, field days, and agronomy meetings. Many meetings have been conducted for farmers to receive pesticide certification credits along with ideas on weed control, pesticide safety, and crop improvement.

For many years, Doyle has conducted income tax and farm record management educational programs/workshops. Throughout the years, he has been a source of advice for many farmers in the area of farm income taxes.

Doyle has been instrumental in starting the Susquehanna County Forest Landowners Association and also working with general timber stand improvement. This has been very important to the county, since 62 percent of the land is forest. Many educational programs have been held to educate landowners in the proper use of this natural resource.

He has worked many years in the area of farm safety. This has been accomplished through field days/meetings and the youth tractor safety certification program.

With the sheep and wool growers, Doyle has conducted numerous educational programs and has worked with the county wool pool. He has also developed a videotape on general year-round sheep flock management.

Because of Doyle's efforts, several areas have set up lake associations that promote proper maintenance of lakes/ponds. He has also put together a wealth of information on aquatic weed control and water quality in general. He has helped numerous people determine their water quality problems.

Other areas in which he has helped the county include starting a Susquehanna County farmers market, starting a county beekeeper's association, working with farmers and families with estate planning, and starting up a county Master Gardener program. He has conducted numerous programs in small fruits, vegetables, gardening, poultry, livestock, dairy, stray voltage, and many others. He has also conducted numerous dairy tours and farm city feasts.

In 4-H, Doyle has been active in most areas and activities. When he first started with extension, he was responsible for the program and for scoring 4-H members' projects. During the past several years, he has worked primarily with livestock, agronomy, and vegetable projects, and he started the 4-H dog and 4-H capon projects. Doyle also coordinated the 4-H program to run in conjunction with the Harford Fair since the late 1950s, and introduced the 4-H Livestock Sale.

Radio programs are a big part of day-to-day extension work. Since Doyle started his career, he has averaged more than two programs per week (more than 3,500 radio programs to date). He has also made numerous appearances on TV programs relating to gardening, landscaping, and farm and home tips.

Doyle has been active in extension associations as well, including the Pennsylvania Association of County Agricultural Agents (PACAA), the National Association of County Agricultural Agents (NACAA), and Epsilon Sigma Phi. With PACAA, he has served and chaired on numerous committees throughout the years. Some of these include the Awards and Recognition Committee, Nominating Committee, Budget Committee, and Retirees Committee. Doyle was also awarded the Distinguished Service Award in 1988 from PACAA.

A book of letters/comments is being assembled for Doyle and contributions toward a gift are being collected at the Susquehanna County Extension Office.

For reservations and contributions, contact Nick Place, Susquehanna County Cooperative Extension, County Office Building, Montrose, PA 18801, (717) 278-1158.

MILK
AMERICA'S HEALTH KICK

Simple Steps Reduce Mastitis

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. — The high temperatures of spring and summer usually bring an increase in mastitis infections caused by environmental conditions, but there are ways to safeguard your herd, says a Penn State College of Agriculture dairy specialist.

"Mastitis can have a severe impact on your dairy operation," says Stephen Spencer, professor of dairy and animal science. "Cows that are recently freshened and under stress for milk production are more susceptible to mastitis because their body reserves are being drained and their resistance to bacteria is lowered. If your best cows get sick, your operation will be in serious trouble."

Keeping your cows outside can help. "The best place for cows under hot and humid conditions is out in the pasture, instead of in dry lots and free stall barns where many microorganisms are present," Spencer says.

Different microorganisms can cause inflammation of the udder. The type that causes mastitis in a particular cow depends on the number of microorganisms present, their ability to overcome body defenses, their growth phase and the resistance of the cow.

Spencer says another way to reduce mastitis risk is to change the bedding material. "Hot, humid conditions increase populations of mastitis-causing bacteria in organic bedding such as straw or sawdust. Inorganic bedding such as sand and limestone screenings can help reduce risk because they don't support bacteria growth." However, Spencer says these materials are usually unsuitable for farms with liquid manure systems.

Pre-dipping each cow's teats in a germicide before applying the milking machine also can help reduce mastitis risk.

"Post-dipping in germicide after milking has been practiced for many years, but pre-dipping is relatively new," Spencer says. "It's an idea with a lot of merit, particularly during periods of the year when environmental mastitis risk is highest."

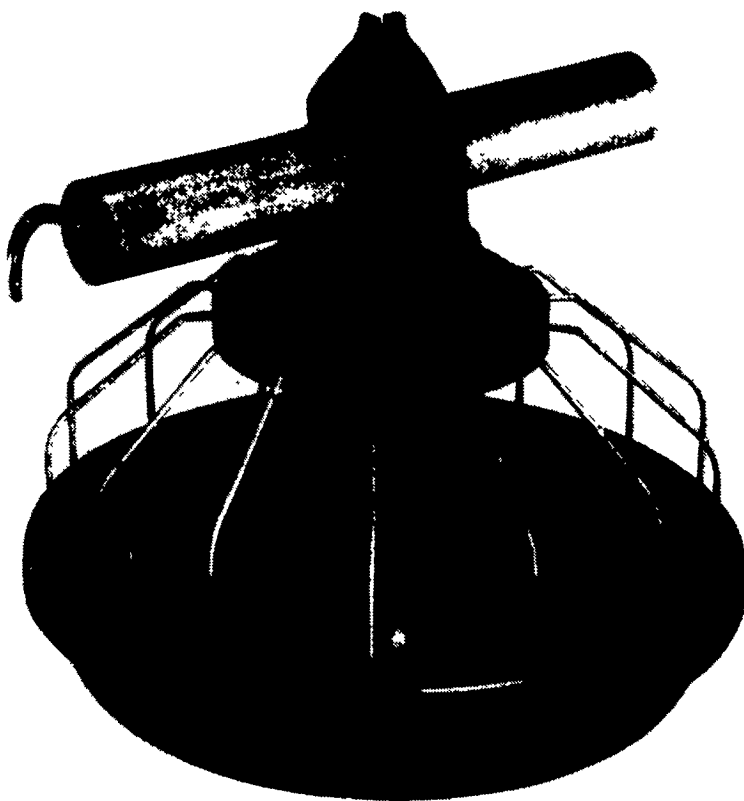

The first step in a pre-dip process is to wipe the cow's teats with a damp cloth. "But don't use a lot of water," Spencer cautions. "Too much water will dilute the pre-dip and increase chances of bacteria on the teat moving around in solution."

After wiping the teat, apply the germicidal pre-dip. "Make sure you use a product that has been labelled specifically as a pre-dip by the manufacturer," Spencer says. After you've applied the germicide, wait at least 30 seconds.

30 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

-A family night program with a covered dish social in the Elizabethtown park is being planned by the Society of Farm Women. The picnic is being scheduled to take the place of the regular monthly meeting of the group on August 5 at 6:30 p.m.

At the last meeting of the group last Saturday in the home of Mrs. Mark Geyer, announcement was made of Farm Women's camp at Camp Swatara Aug. 27-29.

Hostesses at the meeting were Mrs. Mark Geyer, Mrs. Elmer Brill, who had charge of the devotional period, and Mrs. C. R. Frey.

The group saw three films furnished by the local telephone company.

Juliann Erb, a member of the Red Rose Baby Beef and Lamb Club for three years, was elected Wednesday night to represent that group in the county Posture Queen contest.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Erb, Mount Joy R1, Juliann was a contestant in the county junior posture queen contest five years ago. She is a member of 4-H sewing and cooking clubs in addition to the beef club, and has a record of eight years participation in 4-H club work.

-An attack on the inadequacies of the federal income tax system by Senator Hugh Scott, and praise for Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman's positive approach to agriculture by Senator Joseph Clark, highlighted talks by the two senators before a training conference for the 325 leaders of the Pennsylvania State Grange at the Pennsylvania State University last week.

Four Lancaster County Grange leaders among those attending the conference were Miss Marie Murphy of Peach Bottom, and Miss Ruby James, Miss Jeanette McCummings, and Mrs. Ralph Armstrong, all of Drumore.

Delegates at the opening of the three day conference heard Senator Clark praise Secretary Freeman for "seeing our tremendous agricultural production as a blessing, not just a problem." He also commended Freeman for seeking solutions to "agricultural dislocations and inequities that are in the national interest, and not just in the interest of one group or region."

Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman took several steps this week to conserve supplies of barley and oats by limiting sales of Commodity Credit Corporation stocks and discontinuing export programs to meet possible needs for livestock feed use in the Northern Great Plains drought area.

-Homer J. Bicksler, manager of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Hatchery at Harrisburg and former president of the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, was named "Poultryman of the Year" at the Federation's Annual Conference banquet at University Park June 29.

Leslie J. Hubbard of Lancaster, another past president of the Federation and former recipient of the award, presented Bicksler with a framed scroll in recognition of his many years of devoted service to the Pennsylvania Poultry Industry, and particularly to the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation.

Another industry leader honored was Harry H. Kauffman, who retired at the end of June as head of the Pennsylvania State University's poultry extension division. Thomas E. Moncrief of Everybody's Poultry Magazine, Hanover, toastmaster for the evening, presented Kauffman with a framed scroll making him an honorary life member of the Federation. Kauffman also received a piece of luggage as a token of the Federation's appreciation.

Armed with scoops, many of Pennsylvania's dairy princesses helped serve the thousands of downtown workers who poured from the neighboring office buildings for their sweet reward. Princesses patrolled the mall area with squeeze bottles of Hershey chocolate and strawberry syrup. For the creative ice cream lover, Mayberry's Fun Chips, provided a multitude of tempting toppings.

Ephrata Spring Water provided the cool, refreshing beverage for the day. The Franklin Institute of Philadelphia sampled "Astronaut Ice Cream," a first for Everyday Is Sundae.

Many city dwellers were treated to another first, their first cow and calf. The two Holsteins were provided by the Delaware Valley College to show consumers where the milk comes from for their ice cream and all the other dairy products they enjoy.

The Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association advertises and promotes milk and dairy products on behalf of some 5,000 farm families of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, Virginia and West Virginia. MAMMA is a regional affiliate of the American Dairy Association.

Market Lamb Jackpot Show Is A First For Somerset Co.

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — It was a first-time event, but hailed as a big success owing to the 72 entries in the Somerset County Market Lamb Jackpot Show, held recently at the fairgrounds here.

Young people came from at least five Pennsylvania counties and from several states.

Event coordinators, who had managed to raise $1,500 in sponsorship support, said they are eager to see youngsters start learning how to show animals at an early age. Some were only three years old who brought lambs into the showing. Regardless of their performance or age, each participant received a small trophy or banner.

Performing the judging honors was John Conaway, Newville, who owns Pine Haven Farm (with 150 acres of Christmas trees) and who raises Suffolk sheep.

Grand champion winner for the day was Garth Campbell, 18, Gratz, Dauphin Co. He showed a Suffolk lamb which was purchased from Ben and Mary Bow of Annville. Campbell claimed a purse of $150 for making the 8-hour round trip to Meyersdale.

Earning $75 for his reserve grand champion, a Hampshire, was Josh Cowell, Waynesburg, Greene County. Cowell said his sheep was purchased from Don Witt Club Lambs, Champion.

Tegan Hayes, 14, of Somerset took the title of senior master shepherd with her Suffolk lamb, while Jarod Hoover, 13, of Rockwood was named junior master shepherd. With the other entries in this category, Hayes and Hoover had to take the multiple choice written portion, judge lambs in a pen, and do the grooming and handling. For winning, they each received a plaque and an engraved shepherd's crook.

Heidi Svonavec of Rockwood was named the county winner.

forget that most of the 1980s were good for Jersey breeders and also for the American Jersey Cattle Club.

He said that, having come through half of the year with milk checks so low, and feed costs, equipment costs and retail prices of milk staying as high or higher, the situation has many wondering what to do. "Most of us will tough it out," Wright said.

Wright's speech implied that continuing to operate a dairy farm while profits are very marginal is an exercise in blind faith.

"A few of us will remember the depression prices of the early 1930s. During the past half century, there have been numerous ups and downs in the price for milk that we receive. We don't believe any price declines have been as sharp as the recent one," he said.

But, according to Wright, the Jersey breeder has an edge and a reason for hope, as long as he can weather the price decline.

"We are fortunate that we are dairying with the Jersey cow. She is the most efficient of all dairy breeds.

"The emphasis on protein in the dairy industry has given the Jersey breed an added advantage. More dairymen are buying Jerseys. Jerseys are the only breed to show an increase in number of cows on DHI (Dairy Herd Improvement) test during the five years ending in 1989," Wright said.

"Jerseys on test have increased 11.52 percent. Other breeds have suffered declines up to 28 percent," he said.

"Our breed is the only one to experience an increase in domestic semen sales. Our increase was nearly 10 percent. One breed declined 40 percent.

"In semen sales for export, Jerseys experienced a gain of 196 percent. Another breed declined over 50 percent."

Also, Wright told members to remember that while all this growth has been happening within the Jersey breed, the overall dairy cattle herd of the United States has decreased by almost 8 percent.

The implication is that those who can make it through low milk prices with their Jersey dairy herd will stand to gain a great deal when the price paid to farmers for milk comes back up.

According to Wright, the sale of American Jersey cattle genetics, via semen, to overseas interests has been increasing steadily. In the future, Wright said he sees the exporting of Jersey embryos to follow a similar route, as other countries' dairy industries advance technologically.

"What better way to get United States genetics into foreign herds

Dairylea President Testifies For Government Purchases

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Price support through government purchases is at the heart of any workable dairy program, according to Clyde Rutherford, president of Dairylea Cooperative.

Rutherford, a past chairman of the National Commission on Dairy Policy (NCDP), testified June 18 before the U.S. House of Representatives Agriculture Subcommittee on Livestock, Dairy and Poultry.

In his testimony, Rutherford talked about similarities between the commission's recommendations, which were issued in March, and a program by the National Milk Producers Federation (NMPF) to balance milk production and consumption.

Overall, Rutherford said that the NMPF plan has broad industry support and would achieve most of the goals of the NCDP.

He told the subcommittee that both the recommendations of the NCDP and the NMPF plan indicate that an adequate milk supply is dependent on a minimum federal support price.

In addition, balancing the domestic market through purchases of dairy products should be the job of the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC), and the CCC should maintain reserves for national and international food assistance programs.

Market forces, together with adjustments in the government support price, should be used to balance supply and demand for dairy products, according to the commission's report. It recom-

Also testifying is Fred Douma, chairman of the Dairy Farmers For Responsible Dairy Policy, an organization representing southern California dairymen.

Chief alfalfa

In 1988-89 Minnesota trials, Chief had the highest resistance rating against Phytophthora and Bacterial wilt plus good scores on Anthracnose, Verticillium and Fusarium resistance. Big yields of top quality forage make this one an all-star.

Multi-plier alfalfa

Multifoliate with high yield potential and unmatched disease resistance ratings. In University of Wisconsin disease tests, Multi-plier scored 24 of a possible 25 points. Top quality forage, too.

than to sell a nitrogen tank full of embryos out of the genetic giants of our breed?" Wright said.

Wright also complemented the management of the national breed organization, noting that has not been an increase for a basic registration fee for a Jersey under 10 months old since 1982.

"We have only had one increase in TPE fees since 1976," he said.

Wright also thanked those involved in the organization's equity program. He said that the contributions made have helped National All-Jersey and the AJCC to improve the market for Jersey milk.

Earlier in the convention during the business meeting of the National All-Jersey Inc., Richard Clauss, its president, also gave a message of optimism.

"I realize it is difficult for us as dairy farmers to have much optimism due to depressed milk prices," Class said. "Being a dairy farmer, like most of you, I have seen the size of my monthly milk check decrease by about 30 percent in recent months.

"I too wake up in the middle of the night thinking about what I should do to make Clauss Dairy Farms more efficient," he said.

But he said that every morning he goes to a local coffee shop and meets with from eight to 12 other Jersey dairymen for breakfast. During these breakfast meetings, the group discusses the problems and changes happening within the breed, the industry and the government.

"It is seldom that I leave breakfast not feeling optimistic about the dairy business!" he said.

Clauss shared five reasons to be optimistic about the dairy industry and Jersey cattle:

The success of 1990 — "Too often we forget what a good year 1990 was. On the farm, we had record milk prices. These milk prices helped many of us reduce debt and make some needed improvements. Things would be much worse now, if 1990 had not been such a good year."

Milk prices are improving — "They are on their way up again.

In today's market-oriented dairy economy, milk prices are behaving the way a noted economist, Milton Friedman portrayed the economy. Friedman likened the economy to a rubber band. The further it is pulled down in a recession, the quicker it snaps back."

Clauss said his statement is support with the 11 cent per pound increase in cheese price over the past two months. "The cheese price affects all of us," he said.

Also, he said that milk production was down in May, indicating a trend toward a better supply and demand balance.

The strength of the cull cow market is also an indicator that the milk price will rebound quickly, Clauss said.

Another indicator that the milk price will rise is the USDA's revised estimated average milk price for 1991.

Operating with a Jersey dairy herd — "Many times I stop and think how much more difficult it would be to dairy with another breed, especially in this time of low prices. On the production end, as we all know, Jerseys are the most efficient converters of forages and grains into high quality milk. On the plant end, Jersey milk is the most profitable milk used for manufacturing. My milk market recognizes and compensates me for the profitable milk. The price I receive . . . is over 25 percent higher than the price paid for average milk."

A growing acceptance of multiple component pricing and renewed interest in higher minimum standards for fluid milk —

I am convinced that these two programs are the best means to strengthen the dairy industry. I have seen how higher minimum standards can help sell more milk. California has had such standards for the last 25 years."

Clauss said that all dairymen should write and call their federal representatives immediately to urge support of pending legislation which would increase standards for all milk.

The National All-Jersey Inc. — "NAJ played a vital role in working with the Jersey producers in my area to develop our equitable milk market. NAJ has helped thousands of Jersey producers in marketing their milk for a fair and equitable price. Last year alone, we estimate, as a result of equitable milk pricing, Jersey producers received over an additional $20 million for their milk. Jersey producers paid . . . $190,000 in the form of equity fees. This $190,000 was used by NAJ to help you as Jersey producers to receive that additional money. That is over a hundred-fold return on investment."

Clauss also said the NAJ is strong for Jersey breeders because, "With all the activity taking place in regards to the national dairy policy, Jersey producers must be united in one organization to look out for our best interests."

Presenting awards and recognizing outstanding members is also a function of a national convention. On Monday, a number of awards were presented.

The master breeder award was presented to Henry P. Knolle, of Sandia, Texas. The award is presented annually to a living AJCC member, family, partnership of corporation, who, in the opinion of the board of directors, has bred outstanding animals for many years and made a notable contribution to the advancement of the Jersey breed in the United States.

Knolle, 85, continues to pursue a program to breed Jerseys that are profitable, according to an AJCC fact sheet.

In 1928, Knolle and his father started milking grade Jerseys. During the early 1940s they made the transition to 100 percent registered Jerseys. And at one time, the Knolle Jersey Farm claimed the title of the "World's Largest Jersey Herd," with the herd up to 10,000 animals.

Currently, Knolle and his two sons own about 5,000 Jersey cattle.

Also honored was Edwin Crotty, of Columbus, N.J., who received the AJCC Distinguished Service Award. The award is present annually to the member who has rendered unselfish service for many years, and in doing so has made a contribution toward the advancement of the Jersey breed in the United States.

Crotty has worked in the dairy industry and with the Jersey breed for more than 40 years.

Several production awards were also made.

The most cherished production award is the President's Trophy, an award recognizing the highest individual 305-day record for pounds of protein (M.E.) production.

Grube Farm: Study In Self-Reliance

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff
MOHRSVILLE (Berks Co.) — Simple living is not easy living, but it's rewarding, according to Allen Grube, a Berks County dairyman.

Grube, his father Merlin, wife Mary, son Jay, 12, and Kenneth, 7, live on a 121-acre family farm tucked in the hilly farmland region of western Berks County.

They have a herd of grade Holsteins and milk about 48 cows, grow most of their own crops, and make a lot of their own equipment.

Some may question the wisdom in running an operation with grade animals — certainly the Grube's bossys would not make the cut for consideration in a large dairy show.

Allen readily admits that.

But he said his reason for having grade animals is not because he rejects the modern push for creating a herd of registered, show quality animals. Rather, he has focused his business on milk production. Simple, not easy, but efficient.

Somewhat shy about talking about himself, Allen is a study in self-reliance, independence and creativeness.

It's a study in self-reliance.

The Grube family farm is in an area resplendent with large trees, numerous small streams, winding roads. It's an area where the uninitiated can easily get lost while attempting to drive from town to town.

It's also an area where the school district doesn't offer vocational agriculture classes for students. It never did, Allen said.

Not having formal dairy training, Allen turned to his father, magazines, books and continues to attend Extension Service meetings and seminars to continue his education in dairying.

His achievements have not gone unnoticed.

Berks County Extension Agent Clyde Myers talks highly of Allen, noting that under Allen's care, the herd production has risen tremendously.

Currently, while not top of the county, Allen's grade herd averages around 22,000 pounds of milk. In April it was 22,990 pounds of milk with a 3.8 percent fat and 3.2 percent protein composition.

By itself, those rolling herd averages are respectable for any herd.

But consider that when Allen put the herd on test with the Dairy Herd Improvement Association in 1979 and got his first test results in

It's not a Dairy of Distinction, but it could be. The Grube farm and the activities of the family are a study in self-reliance. Many of the buildings were built or renovated by Allen Grube and his father Merlin.

March 1980, his rolling herd average was 14,072 pounds of milk, 3.8 percent fat.

"About 1979, to 1980, we bought a few registered calves, five the first year. It didn't work. The grades do as good or better and I didn't have much luck with the registered cows," he said, indicating that they had health problems and accidents which required either selling them or destroying them.

"If I did get a good heifer, I would worry. With my luck, something would happen to it," he said.

Grade animals are productive for Grube. They work for Grube. If they don't work, they are gone.

It's the same way with a commercial horseback outfitter who takes people high into the mountains — the horses may not be top-of-the line, they might not be pretty, but they work.

Other horses, much more expensive can also do the job, but the investment and risk of loss is greater.

And so it is with Grube's grade herd. They work and they are appreciated.

And Grube works. And studies. He is a businessman, making decisions and making a profit.

In 1984 he put up a haylage silo. In October of 1985 he put in a mixer and got a nutritionist, Tim Kissling, and started feeding total mixed ration. The herd production began to soar after a couple of months.

Allen and Mary Grube say they didn't have far to go to find each other. The non-dairy farm where Mary spend part of her childhood can be seen from where the couple live now, adjacent to their fields.

The signs of independence and self-reliance are everywhere.

The farm itself is not on a "Dairy of Distinction" catalogue, but it could be. In fact, there isn't much to see that could be better.

Ventilation in the barn is great, with a large air duct having been built years ago, without anyone telling him to do it.

The calves are raised in pens that Grube made. The heifers are kept in a freestall facility that Grube and his father built. The gates Grube made himself, spending a winter cutting iron and welding. They will not twist or sag.

The headlock gates are almost all made by Grube, who copied some they purchased.

The automatic feeder for the heifers is a Grube creation — gas engine-powered, with gears taken from a law mower, battery from an old car . . .

The barn is painted and decorated with hex signs that Allen and Mary made.

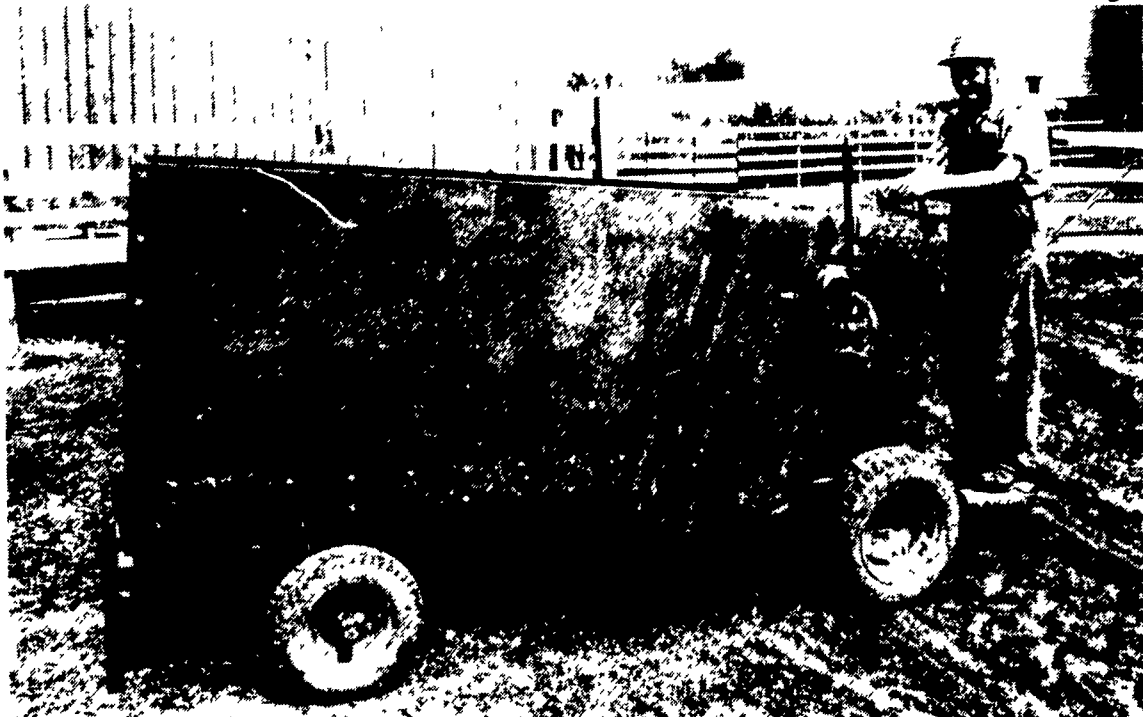

From across the street from the farmhouse, the layout of the dairy farm is balance and scenic — clothes drying on a line, family vegetable garden behind the house — while the practicality of everything is solidly logical.

Often, people talk about farms where cattle of great breeding can be seen. Or, they talk about dairy operations so huge it boggles the mind how they began.

But people who know Grubes talk about how successful and pleasant he is.

And self-reliant.

Allen Grube is at the wheel of his creation — a gas powered automatic feeder. He said it cost him about $800 to build.

A tiled manger presents a herd of grade cows with a clean plate for their total mixed ration.

Test Plots, New Methods Seen On Summer Tour

EVERETT NEWSWANGER

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster

Co.)—New techniques to handle pesticides and herbicides, quick tests to identify nitrogen needs,

Dr. Greg Roth uses a new hand-held chlorophyll tester to determine nitrogen needs in corn.

Part of the group of 200 persons who attended the FMC/Ciba-Geigy summer plot tour from New Holland in Lancaster County, Tuesday morning.

field comparisons of product effectiveness and weed identification plots were all part of the FMC/Ciba-Geigy summer tour to the D. Martin Zimmerman family farm Tuesday morning. More than 200 dealer representatives, custom operators, extension agents, researchers, FFA advisors, and industry personnel filled four buses that transported the group from the park to the Zimmerman farm located along Route 23 just east of Blue Ball.

"While we will not likely see a total employment of all the principles of low input farming in this area, we will need to justify what we do in the way of nitrogen and nutrient management," said Bob Anderson, Lancaster County extension agent. Anderson demonstrated a fast soil test to check for nitrogen that can be done in the field.

According to Dr. Greg Roth, Penn State agronomist, manured fields show a great variation in nitrogen levels. "The layman who reads the newspapers would think that every manured field would have soil tests that would go off the charts," Roth said. "This just isn't so. A lot of the manured fields we tested are low in nitrogen. In fact, out of about 1500 fields, only about 35 to 40 percent of them were above the critical level. This means 60 percent of manured fields need nitrogen."

Roth also demonstrated the

newest way to check for nitrogen needs with a hand-held tester developed in Japan for rice production. The meter checks the corn plant leaves for chlorophyll. By reading the chlorophyll content of various leaves in the field, an evaluation can be made of nitrogen needs.

Steve Fisher, FMC representative, showed application systems on a corn planter that he developed to use as a closed system. In a system, the chemicals are never touched by the operator. FMC has pioneered the use of special couplers even on small containers of chemicals, along with special metering systems so that the applicator does not need to carry large amounts of mixed chemicals in the planter tanks. In addition, at the end of the season, extra inventory and all the empty containers are returned to FMC to eliminate the problem of pesticide container disposal for the farmer.

Don Robinson, vo-ag instructor who chairs the annual field tour, said the event is run to give dealers some answers to many of the questions they are asked by farmers. "By bringing them here, we multiply our effectiveness in teaching," Robinson said. "We show them weeds and what is controlled and not controlled by different herbicide families. We show insect damage and the new products on the market. We also look at equipment to safely introduce the pesticides into a sprayer. With all the regulations that are coming, this will be a very vital subject."

After the tour, the group came back for a picnic in the park. Along with Fisher, Tara Luongo, Ciba-Geigy representative, sponsored the field day and picnic.

CENTRAL PENNSYLVANIA DAIRY TOUR

Mark & Doris Kauffman (holding son Joel)

According to Mark, milk production increased significantly while feed bills dropped dramatically since feeding Harvestore® high moisture corn to his 52 Holsteins currently at 22,258 lbs. milk and 784 lbs. fat. 4223 Slurrystore® system built last year.

Paul (right) and Dick Hartle

The Hartles have fed Harvestore® high moisture corn since 1982 to their herd of 51 Holsteins at 21,200 lbs. milk and 827 lbs. fat. They just replaced the pictured concrete silo with a 2068 Harvestore structure for haylage. No corn silage fed to the milking herd.

Kore (right) and Glen Peachey

61 cows with current production at 21,193 lbs. milk and 795 lbs fat. Since erecting the Harvestore® structures in 1975, the Peacheys have not fed any baled hay to the milk cows. Income over feed costs is over $2,100 per cow.

For complete tour information or to make reservations, contact your area representative or the Penn Jersey office (717-354-4051).

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Another gorgeous sunset is playing against the backdrop of the western sky.

Another panorama of blue sky awash with spreading patches of pink, colors changing even as we watch. Bright fuschia pales to a soft rose. That gentle pink softens still more as blue deepens, and gives way to jutting fingers of purple and gray.

Sunsets are lovely, at any season. Their evening beauty ushers in a winding down of daily farm chores, a slower, more peaceful time of day, a gentle tranquility.

I have always loved sunsets, their glorious, vibrant colors glowing in a last hurrah at the end of day. Lately, though, glowing sunsets have become a source of considerable frustration.

Instead, we'd like a couple of really bright, really glowing, really RED sunrises. Red sunrises, like in the rhyme: Red sky at night, sailors' delight; red sky at morning, sailors take warning."

And you know, most of the time, that little weather ditty is pretty doggone reliable.

Red sunsets promise fair weather to follow. Clear, sunny, bright days. The lovely array of sunsets of recent weeks have brought just that -- clear, bright, sunny, hot-hot and dry-dry days.

Red sunrises are a prelude to "bad" weather: clouds, storms, wind, rain. Boy, could we ever use a stretch of that "bad" weather. (One of the reddest sunrises I remember preceded a hurricane...)

"Bad" weather would be good. "Bad" weather would be great. "Bad" weather would be welcome across much of the region.

By comparison, areas of the midwest and the south have been practicing "man overboard" drills from their back porches. Well, they're almost that wet. Inches of rain, week after week. Two million acres of flat, Mississippi Delta farmland underwater, just a few weeks ago, according to a friend from there.

R-A-I-N. A "four-letter" word. Here, because we don't have nearly enough. Elsewhere, because they're swamped (so to speak) with it.

The benevolent, warm, dry spring which got farmers happily into their fields on an early schedule has quickly turned into a temperamental tyrant. Always sky-scanners, farmers are getting stiff necks of late peering for long stretches toward the heavens. Searching for the slightest hints of precious moisture to save millions of dollars of seed and plant nutrients already tucked into the soil.

Never in my lifetime memory has it been so hot, so dry, so long, so early in the season.

Never before, in my memory time, has young corn curled into tight-tipped, "pineapple" foliage -- by Flag Day.

Never have we planted soybeans to have them lay for three weeks in powder-dry soil, unresponsive, ungerminated.

Never have the pastures been so dry, so brown, so crispy -- so void of nutritious grass for the heifers -- by mid-June. The meadow hillside is so reminiscent of the dry, sagebrush-infested, semi-desert grazing areas of the West that The Farmer claims he's begun watching for antelope.

Never has the alfalfa turned so quickly from a lush green, kissed with the purple of opening blooms, to stretches of pale, greyish, sickly, give-up-the-ghost foliage -- so early in the season.

Never have we been feeding the hay that we should be storing up for the winter -- by the first day of summer.

Never has the sound of rain-drops spattering on the roof and the maples outside the house been any more welcome than in the early-morning darkness of a recent Sunday morning after more than a month with no measurable rainfall.

Never have I been more ready to trade those peaceful, pastel sunsets for a couple of ominously red sunrises promising "bad" weather.

If you have a couple you'd like to swap, call. Immediately. Collect.

We'll pay the freight.

LET'S HAVE A PICNIC

When a warm summer afternoon makes everyone "think picnic," you could find yourself organizing one.

Never fear; find the picnic hamper and the cooler. Then read through the following warm weather food care hints before you head to the store.

Buy perishable products last at the supermarket and take them home right away and refrigerate them immediately. Never leave perishables in a hot car while you run other errands.

Perishable products can be kept in your refrigerator for one to two days. For longer storage, freeze food. Make sure your freezer registers 0 degrees F.

Contrary to common practice, it is not safe to thaw meat and poultry on the kitchen counter. Bacteria can multiply dangerously in the outer layers before inner areas are thawed.

Cook everything thoroughly. If you like your steak rare, just remember that there is a chance that some food poisoning organisms can survive such short cooking times.

If there's no water available, use disposable, wet Handiwipes to clean your hands before working with food.

Keep bacteria on raw meat and poultry from spreading. Wash your hands again after working with raw meat or poultry and before handling other food.

Take up cooked meat and poultry with clean utensils onto a fresh plate for serving. Don't reuse utensils, plates, or bowls you used with the raw product.

For a relaxed, worry-free picnic, keep your perishable food in a cooler.

While all mayonnaise-based salads should be kept on ice, the mayonnaise you buy at the store is not a food poisoning villain. Its high acid content actually slows bacterial growth. But home-made mayonnaise, if made without lemon juice or vinegar, can be risky.

The cooler should be well-insulated and packed with ice, or you can use a freeze-pack insert. Cold drinks in cans help keep other food cool too.

When possible, place the cooler in the shade. Keep the lid on.

Put perishable foods back in the cooler as soon as you finish eating. Do not leave them out while you go for a swim or hike.

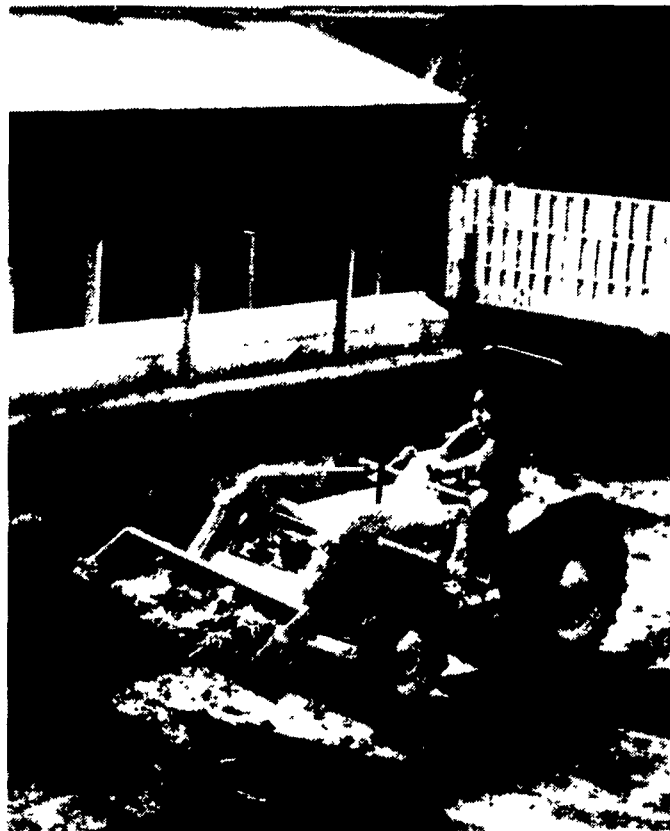

When possible, place the chest in the passenger area of the car for the trip home. It's much cooler than the trunk!

If you were gone no more than 4 or 5 hours, and your perishables were on ice except when cooked and served, you should be able to save any leftovers. Remember, when in doubt throw it out!

Shannon Peterman is the new Lycoming Co. dairy princess.

Bodner's Pottery Sets On Top Of An Unmade Pot

SHARON B. SCHUSTER
BUCKEYSTOWN, MD. —

Located at the crossroads of an old Indian trail that dates to 1725 and the main pathway to the grand manor and plantation of Charles Carroll, one of the signers of the declaration of Independence, is a stone building that has stood since colonial days. At this important intersection, the historic structure has served as what was once the second largest general store in Frederick County, a gas station, warehouse, and now, home to Bodmer's Pottery.

Nancy Bodmer seems very much at home in her comfortable old building that she has converted into her studio and storefront. It showcases the unusual, but functional, and much sought after pottery which she creates. "I love throwing on the wheel," said Nancy. "It's instantaneous; right away you can see that you made something."

Nancy Bodmer took an interest in pottery fifteen years ago. "I didn't know where to start," she recalled. "I took one class and became so frustrated that I quit." She then rented studio space where she used a kick wheel, powered by her feet. There was a lot of physical labor, but I was determined to be a purist, and use no electricity."

A purist philosophy soon gave way to more reliable methods. Nancy traded in her kick wheel for one with an electric motor, and chose an electrically powered kiln. "Electric allows for much more control," she explained. And the kiln is clean, reliable, and more accurate than a wood-heated model.

Nancy was well on her way in her back yard garage location. In 1976, she outgrew her pottery studio. She said, "I had given up my job and worked at pottery full time."

She acquired the building at the crossroads, which is adjacent to her home, and set up shop in one half of the building, and sold her wares and woodstoves from the other side of the shop.

"I started right away making pots. I make pots all year 'round," she said. A self-taught potter, Nancy took up the way of many artisans in the beginning years, by following the craft show circuit.

"It's not worth packing up any more. You need a lot of inventory and something dramatic to catch people's eyes," she explained.

And, she has managed to catch the eyes of the many people who see her wares at her Buckeystown, Maryland store.

"My favorite casserole is a Nancy Bodmer casserole that my husband bought ten years ago," commented Helene Anderson of Potomac, Maryland. "She made it special for my birthday. Everyone that comes into my house loves it," added Helene.

The little shop has a country store character about it and nicely showcases the many plates, cups, bowls, tureens, casseroles, goblets, honey pots, colanders, vases, canisters, teapots, ornaments and jewelry that she makes.

"I'm a very functional potter," she said. "I love making pots. It makes my day when I hear someone say that as they use my cereal bowls each morning, they think of me."

All of Nancy Bodmer's pottery is made for use in the oven, microwave oven and dishwasher.

Nancy's business has grown steadily over the last fifteen years. "About 50 percent of it is special orders. People come to me, now," she said. Among the offerings are special occasion earthenware, and decorative pottery plates which are personalized for weddings, anniversaries, births, or other special events. Family tree plates are popular also.

"I use four different clays, which is sort of suicidal," said the potter. The problems lie in different firing temperatures, and "you don't want to contaminate one clay with the other."

Despite the extra considerations, Nancy said the outcome makes the challenge of using a variety of clays worthwhile. "I enjoy variety and I like the different effects."

Nancy explained that there are as many as 40 different clays from which a potter can choose each differing in color, purity, firing temperature, and content. Among the clays that Nancy uses are pure white porcelain clay, two types of stoneware clay, and a red earthenware clay.

Each type of clay is best suited for select items, and yields a particular color. The porcelain clay fires to a beautiful creamy white color, well-suited for special dishes, jewelry, and colanders. The earthenware gradually progresses to a deep reddish brown color, from its original peachy tone before the final firing. The clays vary in firing temperatures from 1,900 to 2,100 degrees Fahrenheit.

The special occasion plates that Nancy creates often bear dates of birth or marriage on the front. But, the reverse of the plates is special, as well. "I almost always put something personal about the weather or flowers that are in bloom on the day that I make a plate," said Nancy. For example, plates may be inscribed with the notation of a holiday - "First Day of Spring," or "sometimes people give me Bible sayings to use." On the back of one plate in the inventory of special orders Nancy inscribed the following. "Hand-made by Nancy Bodmer in Maryland on a lovely spring day in June, 1991."

Bodmer's pottery is located at the crossroads in Buckeystown, Maryland. Nancy's studio was once the second largest general store in Frederick County. Here she stands in the doorway of the shop.

The colors of Nancy Bodmer's pottery are deep and rich. She once experimented with creating her own pigments, but now relies on paints which yield colors which remain true through a firing, from the first plate to the 50th plate.

"I love color," said Nancy. The porcelain clay pieces are often decorated with pastel colors, whereas the earthenware is decorated with bold earth tones. Nancy decorates her creations with her own hand painted designs, with the exception of a sheep motif decal drawn by fellow artist Marilu Tousignant.

Just a few steps from the shop, Nancy Bodmer shares a beautiful 1780 stone house with husband, Ed, and 13-year-old daughter, Serrin Clay.

"Serrin has made pots since she was four years old," explained Nancy. "But, she's like her father - she doesn't want to get her hands dirty."

Their home in the heart of the historic district of Buckeystown, was constructed from stone which was quarried from the Monocacy River. "It had lots of iron. It was a rare vein of stone," explained Nancy. The iron content accounts for the reddish color of the stones.

Nancy has taken a great interest in the history of Buckeystown, and has authored a book on the subject titled, The Past Revisited; Buckeystown and Historical Sites. She has also written two other books about area historical sites.

When the Bodmers planned to expand the studio, they dug footers for a new addition. "We hit Buckeystown clay which is yellow and fires to a brick red. I made little pinch pots," Nancy said that she has dug clay from nearby brickyards, but it proved to be uneconomical.

"You need machinery to strain it to get out the stones, sticks and shale."

As for her studio's foundation being located on the clay which she has come to love, she said, "I'm sitting on top of an unmade pot!" Nancy said she "will always make pots. I can see myself at 80 years making pots - that's my reason for getting up."

Special occasion plates and earthenware can be ordered from Bodmer's Pottery, Box 163, Buckeystown, Maryland 21717. (301) 662-0777.

The pottery of Nancy Bodmer takes many forms. It's unusual, functional, and in demand.

Bountiful Berries

Berries are abundant at this time of year. There are many ways to use them in microwaved foods... from muffins to pies and frothy desserts.

Blueberries are the most popular muffin berry. Blueberries as well as blackberries and boysenberries make great pies. And, raspberries are delicious in chilled gelatin-type desserts. Frequently berries can be combined or substituted for one another.

By microwaving muffins and pie crusts in summer, you can help prevent excess heat in your home. Pie crust does not brown, but when filled with a colorful filling, the lack of browning is not noticed. Microwaved pastry becomes very crisp and flakey.

My children have grown up on microwaved muffins and were disappointed the first time I thought I would make a special treat and conventionally bake muffins. They complained that they were so crusty! Summer is an ideal time to try muffins, either for breakfast or a snack.

Warm, freshly cooked muffins are always a treat. This recipe makes a pleasantly spiced batter studded with ever popular blueberries.

Favorite Blueberry Muffins

1/4 cup margarine or butter
1/4 cup sugar
1 egg
1 1/2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour

1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup milk
1/4 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup fresh blueberries

1. Microwave (high) margarine in glass mixing bowl 1/4 to 1/2 minute or until softened. Blend in sugar; beat in egg. Add flour, baking powder, cinnamon, nutmeg, salt, milk and vanilla. Beat until smooth. Stir in blueberries.

2. Spoon batter into paper-lined microwave muffin cups, filling about 3/4 full.

National Pork Board Increases Spending

DES MOINES, IOWA — The National Pork Board approved $3 million in supplemental checkoff-funded program spending for 1991 during a meeting June 1, in Des Moines, IA.

The appropriation brings 1991 Pork Board spending on state and national checkoff-funded programs to $34.6 million, which is $5.2 million more than budgeted checkoff receipts for 1991. The deficit spending was possible due to Pork Board reserves accumulated over the last four years. The Pork Board is expected to have very little money in "reserve" at the end of 1991.

The majority of the supplemental money, $1.4 million, will finance four additional television advertising markets this fall. The grant will enable pork producers to kick off a 10-week Pork—The Other White Meat® advertising campaign in four of the nation's largest metropolitan markets, New York, NY; San Francisco, CA; Los Angeles, CA; and Dallas, TX.

Peachy Eating

July ushers in one of the most wonderful fruits — peaches. The fruit is classified in two categories, freestone and clingstone. Clingstone peaches are ideal for freezing because they have a firmer flesh. Freestone peaches are preferred for eating and freezing.

When picking the perfect peach, look for a bright fresh look, a peach firm to the touch, a cream to yellow skin color between red areas, and a peachy fragrance.

Firm peaches can be further ripened by keeping them at room temperature, out of direct sunlight. Ripe peaches should be refrigerated and used within a few days.

A tree-ripened peach creates a wonderful aroma when first picked, but it rapidly fades after four hours off the tree.

Now is the season to try these recipes for peachy eating.

ANSWER — For those interested in making jams and jellies without sugar, Peggy Keck of Boyertown writes that there is a new pectin called low methoxyl pectin that requires calcium instead of sugar to make it set. The jam or jelly can be made with as little sugar as you desire or with a sugar substitute. The low methoxyl pectin and the calcium may be purchased from Walnut Acres in Penns Creek, PA 17862. Directions for making jam and jelly are included with the pectin and calcium.

Melissa Adamire Wears Juniata Crown

CHRIS McCAHREN
Juniata Co. Correspondent
THOMPSONTOWN (Juniata Co.)— Melissa Adamire, the 18-year-old daughter of Russell and Mary Ellen Adamire of Mifflintown, was recently crowned the 1991 Juniata County Dairy Princess. Melissa is a 1991 graduate of Juniata High School where she was an active member of the Scholastic J, Varsity J, National Honor Society, chorus, band, softball, and field hockey teams. She is also involved with community activities such as the 4-H Dairy Club, Lost Creek Mennonite Church, and the Juniata Valley Chorus.

Melissa is the owner of several Holstein cows at her parents' dairy farm outside of Mifflintown. She enjoys sports, biking, hunting, and being outdoors. Currently her career plans are to be a DHIA supervisor with the possibility of further schooling in the future.

During the evening's events, which were sponsored by the Juniata County Dairy Promotion Committee at the Walker Grange, the Dairy Maids, Karen Noss, Traci Saner, and Kristel Stanton were recognized for their role in promoting the dairy industry. Former dairy princesses were introduced, and those present told the audience about their jobs and families along with other items of interest since the years of their reign.

The newly-crowned Melissa

Adamire presented an entertaining and educational skit. Melissa also answered an impromptu question.

Melissa presented the June Baby Gift Award to Mr. and Mrs. William Wenrich of Thompson-town for having the first baby born in June to a Juniata County resident.

Two Juniata County farms were selected to receive the Dairy of Distinction Award for their attractive and well-kept dairy operations. This year's recipients included the Norman Love family of East Waterford and the Sam Shearer family of Port Royal.

The Dairy Princess Pageant came to a close with the milk toast led by Master of Ceremonies George Settlemyer followed by the presentation of gifts to the new dairy princess. To end the evening, everyone enjoyed a "Create Your Own" Sundae Bar.

Retired County Agent George Settlemyer, who served as the master of ceremonies at the Juniata pageant, offers a milk toast. Joining him are 1991 Dairy Princess Melissa Adamire, center and Dairy Maids, Karen Noss, left, and Traci Saner, right.

ANSWER — Mrs. John Fox of Walnutport wanted to know whether to use dry or fresh corn cobs when making corn cob jelly. Last week, a reader wrote that she uses fresh, this week Loretta Kurtz, Allensville, and others have written that you use dried cobs from shelled corn, which makes a red-colored jelly. Here is Loretta's recipe.

Corn Cob Jelly

8 red corn cobs, washed
Boil for one hour in 3-quarts of water. Strain. Use:
3½ cups corn cob water
1 box Sure-Jell (follow directions on box for red raspberry jelly) excited as I happened to find her nest.

My parents owned two adjoining farms and I had a long path along the Conestoga River that I always followed. I traveled alone and at a certain point I always followed a fencerow to the old unoccupied farmhouse—where I now live. Here I could get a drink from the handpump in a small pumphouse.

Then I followed the long lane to a wooded area where bushes grew along the edge of the field. Sometimes I got a spooky feeling as I was alone and far from people.

But when I returned home with a full pail of berries, my mother would ask me to make jelly. Anyone who has used raspberries for jelly, knows that it can be a messy job with purple blotches all over the place. We had a big wood stove in the kitchen and no running water.

The jelly that I made was stored in a corner cupboard in the summerhouse. And, it was only put on the table at Thanksgiving and Christmas. So, it accumulated and when my parents moved, the cupboard was full of old jelly—such a waste of a good product. Now that old corner cupboard sits in my dining room.

Astronaut Ice Cream Launched At "Everyday Is Sundae"

Melanie: "I like it. It tastes like hard cotton candy."

Debby: "I don't like it. I don't want to eat it."

Bryan: "I like the taste of it. It tastes like hard plastic."

Anna: "I think it's wonderful. I'd rather eat this instead of candy. It's like solid ice cream, but very, very light. Very interesting. Very different. It's the perfect snack, I think."

SHUTTLE: "Shuttle to earth! Shuttle to earth! Please come in!"

CONTROL: "Speak up Discovery we can barely hear you."

SHUTTLE: "We may have to abort this mission. I've got three members of my crew in a state of depression. We've got an emergency up here and I want permission to turn this shuttle around and head for home."

CONTROL: "You are coming in loud and clear now, Captain, but you and crew have two more weeks of work to complete. Your request is denied. Do you read me? Your request is denied."

SHUTTLE: "I know our work is not complete, but the crew refuses to continue this mission. I am outnumbered. It is impossible for us to continue this mission under these conditions. We are turning around and heading for home."

CONTROL: "Captain! Captain! Please explain. What conditions are making it impossible for you and your crew to continue your work?"

SHUTTLE: "There's no ice cream on board. You cannot expect us to survive in space for more than a week without ice cream. We demanded that sufficient ice cream be stocked in our galleys after the nearly-aborted previous mission. You cannot expect us to work under horrible conditions."

CONTROL: "Captain, do not abort. I repeat! Do not abort. You'll find your ice cream stocked as you requested. Please check the storage area under your seats. Please check now."

After a long silence, loud cheers and laughter roar from the crew.

SHUTTLE: "Mission control, the Astronaut Ice Cream has been located. Will resume our mission. (Silence). It's delicious, but we sure do miss those sugar cones."

CONTROL: "Maybe next time, Captain. Maybe next time. Good

Joseph: "I think it's great. It doesn't melt and drip. It would be great to eat in the car or out by the pool."

Kevin: "I'd rather have this than an ice cream cone. I'd like to be an astronaut. Can I have some more?"

Londa: "It was all right. It tastes like a stale cookie. I'd eat it instead of spinach."

Have you heard of quark? It's a yogurt-like cultured dairy product popular in Europe and sold in gourmet stores in the United States. Available in plain, chocolate and fruit flavors, quark is eaten like yogurt, drunk as a beverage or used for cooking like cottage or Ricotta cheese.

Maureen: "If I were on Mars, I would eat it, but I like real ice cream better."

Miranda: "I've never had anything like it before. It was okay, but it didn't taste like vanilla."

Made with milk, cream and nonfat milk, Astronaut Ice Cream is REAL ice cream -- freeze-dried. It was one of the featured desserts at the Philadelphia ice cream festival, "Everyday Is Sundae," held last week to kick off July as National Ice Cream Month. Nearly 20,000 ice cream lovers lined-up on Independence Mall for their favorite flavors, all of it free, compliments of Basset's, Jack and Jill, Haagen-Dazs, Friendly's, Breyer's, Richman's, Turkey Hill, Cloisters, Rosenberger's, and Mayberry's Fun Chips. The fifth annual Everyday Is Sundae is sponsored by the dairy farmers of the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association. MAMMA advertises and promotes milk and dairy products for its 5,000 dairy farmer members in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, Virginia and West Virginia.

You don't have to orbit the earth to eat Astronaut Ice Cream, but you will need to be transported into the future, or to the Futures Center at Philadelphia's Franklin Institute Science Museum, if you want a taste of this freeze dried ice cream. At the Futures Center, new at Franklin Institute, you can be part of the "Mission To Mars" and operate your own space colony with your own computers and robots. It's serious fun only at the Franklin Institute. For more information, call (215) 448-1200.

Marla and Jennifer: It's real dry. It's sticky. It tastes like chocolate. If we were astronauts, we would eat it."

Dear Readers,

Hi! My name is Janet. I am eight years old. My birthday is November 2. I live on a dairy farm. The feed mill my father goes to gives out free popsicles. I am glad school is out so I can go along. They give popsicles the whole month of June because it is dairy month.

We have three ducks. We got four from someone but a rat ate one. So we have just three. I feed and water them. They are getting big and white. We leave them outside in a pen. We usually brought them in at night but they are getting too big to fit in a box.

Wool Pool Bags Lowest Price Since 1935

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent
MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.)— A U-Haul truck stuffed with raw wool arrived at the Somerset County Wool Pool held at the fairgrounds. It led a trailing line of vehicles in assorted shapes and models that were filled with poolers who waited for hours anticipating their turn at one of the two scales after grading was completed.

Of the three bidders for the county's wool, A.H. Helmig & Co., Inc., Narbreth, was the buyer.

A total of 214 bags was loaded on Helmig's truck the following day. The gross weight of all the wool was 35,633 pounds worth $10,321.61.

In the nine grading categories, most of the wool was ¾ to ¼ staple of which 696 pounds were tare, leaving a net weight of 29,465. Helmig paid $.2992 per pound in this category.

The highest per pound rate was for fine staple, at $.5610. There was a gross weight here of 475 pounds. Twelve pounds were tare.

Somerset County's first wool pool was held in 1919, according to records. Reports from the Cooperative extension office said that prices this year are the lowest since 1935. Market experts say that over-production in Australia is responsible for the wool market catastrophe, which has a surplus that can fill demand for several years. There also has been a sharp decline in world customers such as China and Russia.

Director for this year's pool was Jim Jacobs. Graders were Edward Woods and Mary Sur Shick from the Washington County extension office.

Berks Plans Fall Flower Show

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Berks County gardeners are gearing up for a brand new flower and vegetable show this fall. The show, which is aptly titled the Berks County Harvest Show, is sponsored by a group of dedicated home gardeners from all over the county. It will be held September 6 and 7 at the Berks County Agricultural Center.

Why start a new flower show? According to Justina Campbell, chairperson of the event "We wanted to create a show that is open to everyone, not just garden club members. We also wanted to offer the public a chance to learn more about growing plants and landscaping while they are at the event."

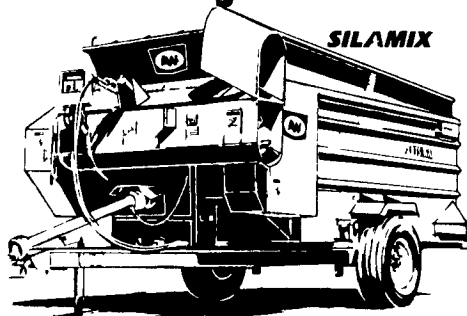

To do that the group has planned a series of seminars and demonstrations that will be held during the afternoon and evening of the show.

The theme of this year's show is "The Season's Bounty". Gardeners will be able to enter flowers, vegetables, floral arrangements and houseplants. The specimens will be judged by certified experts and ribbons will be awarded to winning entrants. There will be no fee to enter but tickets for door prizes will be sold to help support the show. The lectures and demonstrations will also be free of charge. A very special feature of the show will be a children's section where kids may exhibit plants and make their own floral arrangement right at the show to take home. In addition, there will be a concession area where you can purchase plants, garden supplies and crafts, and even eat lunch or have a snack.

The main reason for the Harvest Show is to encourage people to enjoy gardening as a hobby. The show committee is looking for participants as well as visitors. Programs which list the categories and procedures for entering the show are available at the Berks County Extension Office, P. O. Box 520, Leesport, Pa. 19533. Call 215-374-3455 for more information.

Tioga County Selects Dairy Princess

ROARING BRANCH (Tioga Co.) — Candice Kennedy was recently crowned Tioga County Dairy Princess at a dinner-pageant held at the Mansfield United Methodist Church.

Candice is the 17-year-old daughter of LeRoy and Sandra Kennedy of Middlebury Center where they reside on the Busted Fence Farm. Candy will be a senior at Wellsboro Area High School this fall.

Becky Brewer was selected as 1st Alternate. Becky is the 17-year old daughter of Richard and Patricia Brewer of Millerton and they reside on the Brewersview Farm.

Becky will be attending Mansfield High School in the fall as a junior.

Julie Seachrist was named as second Alternate. Julie is the 17-year-old daughter of Leo and Rita Seachrist of R.D. 1 Roaring Branch. Their farm's name is Sugarwork Jersey Farm. Julie will be a senior at Canton Jr.-Sr. High School this fall.

Also competing in the pageant were Margie Aumick, daughter of Rexford and Marylan Aumick of Mansfield, and Debbie Stevenson, daughter of Donny and Jeanne Stevenson of Millerton.

Each contestant was interviewed prior to the pageant by the judges, then during the pageant each had a general interview, gave a skit or speech, and was asked one contest question.

Eight Dairy Maids were also introduced and presented with sashes and a thank-you gift. These young ambassadors are as follows: Kelly Baker, granddaughter

Same Old Stuff

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — People are extremely loyal to certain brands of foods. A recent survey of one of America's most free-spending consumer groups, singles aged 25 to 34, indicated that they derived a sense of tradition and comfort from eating foods they enjoyed when they were children.

"The last thing most food manufacturers want to do is present consumers with surprises," says Ruth Hollender, sensory evaluation specialist in Penn State's College of Agriculture. "A detail as small as altering the sugar or salt content by a fraction could lose the manufacturer a sizeable share of its market."

Sometimes tried and true recipes remain the best, Hollender says. But anyone who's ever followed the same recipe twice and gotten different results knows the frustration of trying to come up with a consistent food product.

So how does General Mills make mountains of Cheerios that always taste the same? How do thousands of other food manufacturers meet the challenge on a of Glen and Jeanne Bowen of Wellsboro; Rebecca Bechtel, daughter of Robert and Dianne Bechtel of Covington; Erin Gummo, daughter of Donald and Jackie Gummo of Wellsboro; Laura Fitch, daughter of Elwin and Charlene Fitch of Roaring Branch; Cathleen Norman, daughter of massive scale?

Give sensory evaluation experts some of the credit. Panels of trained food scientists — whose discerning palates can detect the most minute changes in flavor or texture — taste the products over and over again to ensure consistency.

Many manufacturing companies maintain their own evaluation panels. Food processors who don't have their own facility can turn to the Penn State sensory evaluation lab.

Hollender, director of the lab since 1980, has trained scores of food science students and faculty to evaluate products and their ingredients.

"Sensory evaluation is more than just taste-testing," she explains. "Sometimes we test for visual appeal, and other times for flavor, aroma or texture."

"When a company considers changing an ingredient or a process, we may perform a triangle difference test. Panelists are given three samples — two alike and one different — and they have to select which is different."

Hollender conducts each test with great care. "Panelists always want to be right," she says. "We have to make sure we don't give them any clues about the samples. We take precautions such as using special lighting in the lab so any color differences will be cancelled out."

"We present the samples in identical containers. If we're testing a juice, we use cups that are the same size and color. Samples also are given at the same temperature."

Sometimes manufacturers want to change an ingredient because they've found a less expensive alternative. Other times, an ingredient may not be available due to import restrictions or natural catastrophe.

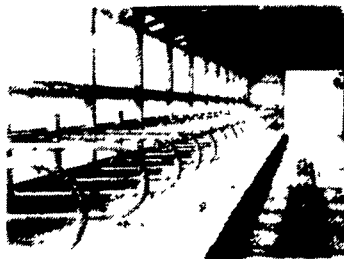

For instance, many chocolate manufacturers who once relied on cocoa beans from Ghana have been forced to find alternative sources. Over the past 25 years, more than 200 million cocoa plants in that country have been destroyed by a virus.

1,500 Visit Somerset Farm

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent
SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — Ignoring the gloom of overhead clouds, some 1,500 visitors came to the Walker Grove Farm to enjoy Day At The Farm, sponsored by the Somerset County Farmer's Association. The farm is owned and operated by Ray M. and son, Kurt Walker, with their wives, Anna and Lucinda.

Several tractors and wagons provided continuous afternoon hayrides for as many eager adults as there were children. Many of them waited in a line that resembled a stretched-out ribbon.

The beef and dairy cookoff first place winner was Esther Mishler, Hollsopple, with her Mexican Lasagna. Second place was the Sassy Beef made by Judy Rhoads, Stoystown. Third place was Cornghetti, prepared by Michelle Kimek of Hollsopple.

Also hosting the event were state and county queens and princesses who found themselves building the 100 foot hoagie of beef and cheese, and later, serving guests with ice cream sundaes scooped from the giant one they had made with 33 gallons of ice cream.

A celebrity milking contest featured Tim Rigby from WJAC-TV, Johnstown, and Jim Burton, WKYE, radio, Johnstown. Two Walker Grove Holstein cows were tethered at a wagon in the center of the crowding spectators and, in exchange for their cooperation, given plenty of good grain to eat while the fair progressed.

Karl Kaufman, Bedford County, demonstrated sheep shearing on a Romney sheep during the afternoon.

Also available for guests was the barn tour, petting zoo, and machinery displays. Food samples were cheese, lamb, potato chips, and vanilla ice cream topped with pure Somerset County maple syrup. Milk and milk punch samples were available.

Other Somerset County organizations that helped with the event included the Dairy Promotion Committee, Allied Milk Producers, Beef Producers, Maple Producers, Sheep and Wool Growers, and Potato Growers.

Co-chairman for the event were Jay Shaffer, Somerset and Jim Brant, Berlin.

1991 BARN PAINTING
Aim For The Best - In Coating Film Thickness

To do it right use the finest kind of bristle brush evening out the coating into a film thickness that does not peel in normal moisture stress (found on most barn siding from outside and inside by livestock or stored animal feed)

- PREPARATION. Peeling old coatings (improperly brushed) needs to be removed. The best method is simply water blasting or power washing! High volume of water - medium pressure is best! Done professionally or do it yourself, especially on the easy to reach areas. This is resurfacing!!!
- BEST NEW START ON RESURFACED WOOD SIDING After spraying on this kind of barn paint or stain, take time to pay attention to brush out in all directions to create a film thickness that will prevent future peeling & resurfacing costs & effort. This film will let excess moisture breathe through it. Depending on the amount of weather wear it can be recoated lightly in 10-15 years. Southern exposures usually wear faster.

Bucks-Montgomery Crowns Tanya Martin

A daughter of Starr Martin of Walnutport in McKean County, Tanya will devote the coming year to promoting the dairy industry throughout the Bucks-Montgomery county area. She will make numerous appearances at schools, grocery stores and special events and will speak to both farm and non-farm audiences.

Tanya, 18, will begin her sophomore year this fall at Delaware Valley College, where she is studying dairy science. A member of the college's Dairy Science Club, she applies her education and skills as a part-time employee at Holly Hill Dairy Farm in Otts-ville. Tanya is a 1990 graduate of Port Allegany High School. She was a member of her school's National Honor Society, student government, SADD, chorus and tutoring program. She was a former president of her 4-H dairy and livestock clubs.

During the pageant, Tanya posed as a nutritionist in a skit geared toward adult consumers. She spoke about milk's benefits and the many dairy products that are available. Milk for fitness and health was her message.

Tanya will be assisted in her dairy promotion duties by Alternate Dairy Princesses Heather Derstine and Brenda Wolfgang. Heather, 18, is the daughter of Ivan and Lorene Derstine of Harleysville. She is employed full time at Merry Mead Farm near Lansdale. Brenda, 18, is the daughter of Robert and Gail Wolfgang of Bechtelsville. She will Also helping out with dairy promotion events will be three Dairy Ambassadors — Danielle Breaux, 14, the daughter of Al and Nona Breaux of Salfordville; Gail Moyer, 14, the daughter of Nevin and Louis Moyer of Perkasi; and Katie Sterner, 13, the daughter of George and Linda Sterner of Bechtelsville. The Dairy Ambassador program is open to girls and boys between 13 and 15 years of age who are interested in promoting milk and dairy products.

Judging the 1991 Bucks-Montgomery Dairy Princess contest were Tammy Balthaser of Bernville, Marily Sonnen of Richland, and Andrew Stoltzfus of Morgantown.

Schaefferstown House Alive With History

LOU ANN GOOD

Lancaster Farming Staff
SCHAEFFERTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — "I don't think there is anything as wonderful in the world as the Schaeffer House. I consider it the number one Germanic house. It has so many features no other house has," Robert Bucher, who researches old homes, said.

Some historians disagree, but that doesn't detract from the colorful history of the Swiss-style house with the deed that dates back to 1736.

The style of the house is not typical Germanic and experts have not figured out its unique architecture. At one time, Bucher believed it was a Swiss bank house, but that has been discredited.

The history compiled by letters, deeds and marriage certificates reveals that 347 acres were deeded to John Miley in 1736. It is suspected that Miley intended to turn the land into a Cloister settlement, a religious community, but within one year, Miley joined the Cloister settlement in Ephrata and became known as Brother Amos. His daughter, Anna, became Sister Annatasia, the leading sister at the Cloister settlement. Her vows of celibacy were broken when a famous glassmaker from Philadelphia whisked the celebrate sister away one night to Germantown where he married her.

Miley sold the land to Durs Thommen, a Swiss farmer. A 1737 letter reports that the property had two houses and two barns on the land. He wrote in German that has been translated, "We have good liberties in this land, in all matters, there are many sects here, such as — Reformed, Lutheran, Amish, Seventh Day and Sunday Baptists, Mennonites, "Pedisten," and also Catholics. All nationalities are friendly and helpful to each other as also the "Wild People" or Indians are very friendly to the civilized people.

"The plowing is very good. With two horses, one man can plow one "great acre" in one day. There are no poor people in this land, for whoever is willing to work, can support himself richly."

He asked his friends to send German books, Bibles and Psalters, which were rare in the land.

"The land is good and fruitful and everything that is planted by man will grow in abundance," Durs Thommen wrote.

Later, Thommen wrote to Basil, Switzerland from the Carolinas: It is very hot here (Carolinas). Everything dries out. Many go to the Carolinas for the summer but what Carolina is advertising, don't believe it. There is no good bread in the Carolinas. There is no bread that compares like the meal that comes out of Pennsylvania.

He refers to his Schaefferstown farm that he believed produced the best wheat for bread baking, and that the land is very good and gives all kinds of richness as in Basil, Switzerland.

In 1754, the property became known as the Schaeffer Farm. It is believed that the present house was built soon after that and the first house dismantled.

In the 1760s, Captain Henry Schaeffer removed the original cooking fireplace in the basement and replaced it with a distilling fireplace. It is believed to be the only one like it in the world. The two-pot stills were located at the rear of the fireplace and were heated with hot embers from the front. Above the hearth are located the return flues to control the draft around the two stills.

Water from the village dam flowed through an open ditch to the area near the house where the water was conducted past the still to cool the coils.

Early records indicate an annual wine sale — the only one in Pennsylvania — on the Schaeffer place. It is believed the early products were apple, peach, and cherry brandies.

In 1771, a large beehive bake oven was built on an addition to the house. It is still in working condition.

"It is the only bake oven, in a private home, that I know anywhere in the world that you can stand under," Bucher said.

Later the land was divided, and, through marriage, Scheetz became an owner of the lower farm in the 1780s.

According to Bucher, the wealthiest persons living during that era were first the tavern owners, then the millers, and third the blacksmiths.

Scheetz, a blacksmith and wagon builder, was robbed and beaten to death with a hammer in the 1780s.

"It was the murder of the century," Bucher reports.

After that people were scared to put a foot on the place because they believed the property was hexed.

Bucher points out the seven round holes that are still evident above the oven. He believes that the holes were drilled to invoke blessings, in accordance with superstitious beliefs, to protect the cakes and bread from going flat.

Bucher has found house and barn blessings from that era. These blessings were written on three pages of paper and hid in a tin box stuck between the eaves of the buildings. The writings appear to be prayers asking for protection from fire, storm, and other dangers.

The Schaeffer farm was part of Lancaster County until 1789 when it became part of Dauphin County until 1814 when it became a permanent part of Lebanon County.

For many years, the property was rented. In 1961, the house was purchased by one of the directors of Historic Schaefferstown, Inc. Nine annual events are held at the Alexander Schaeffer Farm Museum.

On July 13 and 14, a Folk Festival will be held. Although the distilling fireplace is under restoration, the large bake oven in the 1771 kitchen addition will be used to bake bread, pig stomach, and pies that will be available for taste testing.

Although, the old log barn burned in the 1870s, it was replaced that same year with another barn. A nearby farmer claims that it is the best built barn in Lebanon County. Many other original landmarks remain. Wooden water pipes that lead from the spring to the house are still in place. The original windows with sashes on the bottom floor have not been replaced. Stones are laid on the bottom of the creek bank where a dam is placed. The flow of water is controlled by adjusting the stones to keep the water at the level needed. A buttonwood tree estimated to be 400 years old or more stands next to the house.

The arch cellar has a spring running through it to cool and humidify the place. Cross ventilation was needed to keep the air pure. According to Bucher, the housewife checked the ventilation in the cellar by hanging a piece of day-old bread from the ceiling to see how long it took to mold. In that way she could tell whether to open or close windows.

The door has the original paint colors with the stenciled 12-pointed stars etched on the door. It was History for the Schaefferstown house has been compiled by researching documents in this country and in Switzerland and Germany. The first deed for the property dates back to 1736.

The style of the Schaeffer house is not typical Germanic and experts have not figured out its unique architecture. But Robert Bucher, who has been researching old homes in the Delaware and Pennsylvania areas since the 1950s, said the place has features not found in other historic homes.

painted with an overlay of four three-pointed Star of David.

Bucher said that the 12-pointed star stands for God's community on earth.

Other highlights of the Folk Festival is the black raspberry custard pie contest on July 13 at 10 a.m.

On both Saturday and Sunday, Bertha Reppert, a recognized authority on herbs will tell of the use of herbs in recipes and as remedies at 2 a.m. Scotch border collies will demonstrate their sheep herding instincts. Craftsmen will demonstrate threshing and a 100-year-old sawmill operation.

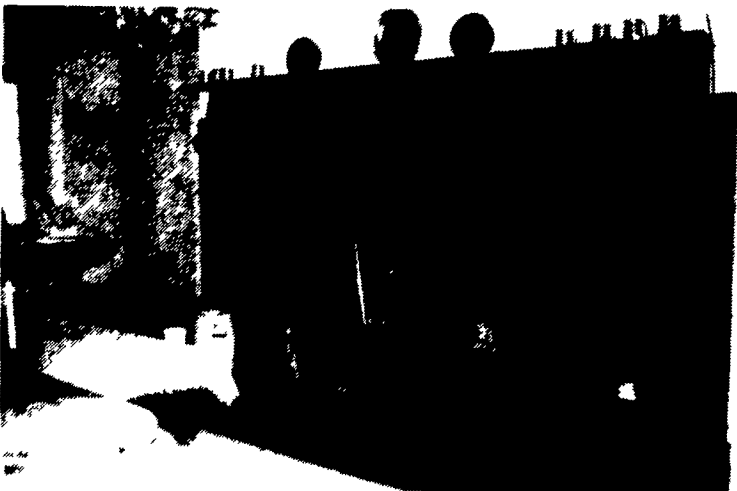

In addition to the Schaeffer House, visitors may tour the garden, gift shop, log house over the spring, the barn, the blacksmith shop, the dry house.

Samples of raspberry shrub, a colonial drink; apple fritters, pies, and pig stomach will be served. Sausage sandwiches and other food will be sold.

The Country Classics will entertain Saturday. Sunday, the Rehresburg Band will perform and Alan Artz will lead a sing-along. Children can participate in games.

Schaefferstown is located at the junctions of Route 501 and 897 in Lebanon County. Admission is $2.50 for adults; children under 12 are admitted free.

This is the bake oven that will be used to bake pies, pig stomach and other Dutch foods during the Schaefferstown Folk Festival on July 13 and 14. The initials H.S., carved in the mantel above the fireplace, show that Henry Schaeffer built the fireplace in the 1760s.

Farm Developer Receives National Award

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — James R. Moxley, Jr., of West Friendship (Howard County) has become the 17th Maryland resident since 1957 to be selected as a national winner in the 4-H Alumni Recognition Program.

Moxley is among eight former 4-H members throughout the nation who received the jade crystal statuette award this year in recognition of outstanding accomplishment during their adult years.

Moxley received his award during the final day's assembly of the annual Maryland 4-H Teen Conference at Washington College in Chestertown. The award is funded by Beatrice/HuntWesson/Orville Redenbacher's Gourmet Popping Corn and arranged by National 4-H Council, headquartered in Chevy Chase.

Orville Redenbacher is a former Indiana 4-H member and past national winner of the 4-H Alumni Recognition Award.

A 1951 College of Agriculture graduate from the University of Maryland at College Park, Moxley began his professional career as a Howard County dairy farmer. Later, he dispersed the dairy herd and established a purebred Angus beef cattle operation in 1970 that continues to receive national recognition at livestock shows.

The Moxley herd is a source of production breeding stock and show-quality cattle throughout the eastern United States, both for purebred breeders and for junior breeders and 4-H beef cattle project members.

In 1956 Moxley expanded into real estate development. He helped assemble the land for the development of Columbia and Howard County's first shopping center during the 1960s. And he currently serves as president of Security Development Corporation at Ellicott City, which he founded in 1978.

Moxley is chairman of the board for the Columbia Bank and Howard County General Hospital in Columbia. In the latter capacity, he recently led a $28 million fundraising campaign.

He also is the national planned giving coordinator for Alpha Gamma Rho Foundation, headquartered in Kansas City; a board member of the Montgomery Mutual Insurance Company at Sandy Spring; and an advisory board member for the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine.

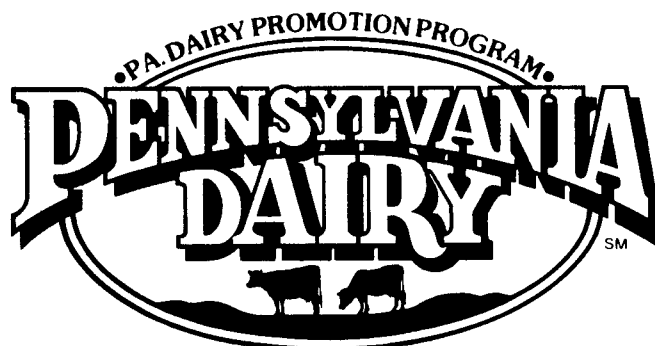

Moxley headed the building committee for the $1 million Maryland 4-H Center at College Park, which was dedicated in 1989 following a six-year fundraising effort involving more than 5,000 adult volunteers. The center provides a permanent headquarters for the Maryland 4-H Foundation, plus offices and meeting rooms used by state 4-H faculty members and staff of the Cooperative Extension Service University of Maryland System.

During 11 years as a 4-H member, Moxley participated in dairy, beef, gardening, safety, citizenship, swine and poultry projects. He has been recognized as a Maryland 4-H All Star and a member of the Maryland 4-H Hall of Fame.

He is a past president of the Maryland 4-H Foundation and was a local 4-H adult volunteer leader for 15 years.

Sauro Wins Veal Recipe Contest

WESTMORELAND, NY — Steve Sauro, chef at Sauro's Restaurant, Syracuse, took top honors in the "Veally Profitable Recipe Contest for Chets," with his "Crabs of Veal" entre.

The contest, sponsored by The New York Beef Industry Council, was part of a five month statewide Veal Restaurant Promotion that began in November.

The judges tapped "Crabs of Veal" as the $1,500 Grand Prize winner. Garnering first place was Fred Crittella of Crittella's Ristorante in Manlius, New York. His award includes a recognition plaque and a cash prize of $1,000 for his dish "Grilled Veal with Artichokes and Wild Mushroom Sauce." The second place prize of $750 cash went to William Paul Dunn of the Skaneateles Country Club in Skaneateles for his "Veal Chop Kona Coast." "Veal Grand Gala" took Third Place and $500 for Edward Ludington 11 of The Sunset Restaurant in Auburn. Fourth Place and $250 went to Nancy Oddo of The Green Gate Inn, Camillus for her "Banana Curried Veal Shank."

Judges for the event were Joyce Van Opdorp, a New York Veal Growers representative from Clifton Springs, New York; Jack Wood, editor of New York's foremost foodservice publication Empire State Food Service News; and Randall Colman, a restaurant management and hospitality professor at Sullivan County Community College.

Veal Industry Initiates Grilling Program

WESTMORELAND, NY — A checkoff-funded program that will help retailers sell more veal this summer is underway. This point-of-sale program, "Grilled Veal: Nutritious, Easy, Delicious!" is providing retailers with materials and other marketing and promotional items that will entice consumers to try veal while cooking on the grill this summer.

Nearly 60 chains representing 2,000 supermarkets nationwide are participating in the veal industry's first major veal retail marketing effort. In New York, 310 retailers have signed up to promote ground veal, veal kabobs, veal chops and veal steaks. These cuts have an average of 166 calories per 3-ounce, cooked serving and they can be grilled in 20 minutes or less, which makes them perfect for a summer menu choice.

Recent research indicates that convenience and nutrition are two of the most important purchasing factors to more than half of all consumers. The pre-publicity materials for the promotion reminds retailers that veal is the perfect choice for today's active lifestyles, fits perfectly into a low-fat, low calorie diet and is a nutrient-dense food that is a valuable source of niacin, zinc and vitamin B-12.

"We're helping retailers develop new ways to market veal in the summer, a period when veal sales traditionally lag behind other grillable meats," says Floyd Many, New York Beef Industry Council Veal Director.

New, attention-getting point-of-sale materials include mobiles, case and rail strips, recipe booklets and on-package recipe stickers.

Students Learn Aquaculture At Juniata

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Students at Juniata Valley High School will discover the secrets of science and math in the course of learning how to raise and market fish and other aquaculture products when classes resume this fall.

The students and their instructors are part of a pilot aquaculture education program being implemented by The National Council for Agricultural Education. Six sites were selected from applicants across the nation to receive a $49,100 grant to develop an aquaculture learning center and test curriculum materials. The program is being funded by Congress through the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Cooperative State Research Service.

The program was created in response to a shortage of people trained in aquaculture. Diet-conscious Americans are eating more fish. This rise in demand comes at a time when the supply of natural fish and seafood resources is falling because of overharvesting and polluted waters. The resulting supply gap has created tremendous opportunity in the aquaculture industry, thus a need for more people trained in this area.

The aquaculture program integrates instruction in science, math,

English, and agriculture through a hands-on approach. John Pope, executive director of The Council, said, "We will be teaching science and the use of high technology in an emerging industry which is of increasing economic importance." Pope sees aquaculture education as a means of stimulating American students to study math and science, particularly as it relates to water quality and the environment.

Each of the six selected applicants will send a team of teachers, including an agriculture teacher and a biology or chemistry teacher, to a two-week inservice workshop July 7-19 at the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory (GCRL) in Gulfport, Miss. The workshop will include instruction in aquaculture and a review of the curriculum materials to be tested. The curriculum materials were developed by GCRL, the Oceanic Institute in Honolulu, and Iowa State University in Ames.

Aquaculture isn't a separate course at Juniata Valley High School. It's a part of the agriculture, biology, and chemistry curricula. According to Peter Ludwig, principal, students will be required to take a one-half semester agriculture course during their freshman year that includes instruction in aquaculture.

Joe McMullen, formerly the biology teacher and now the aquaculture program coordinator, explains the program's team teaching approach. "Our students will receive training in aquaculture through other courses. Biology courses will include information on water quality. Chemistry students will study water chemistry. Agriculture students cover feed rations and feed conversion. All of these classes will use the aquaculture lab facility."

In addition to the high school program, McMullen teaches an adult class which focuses on developing an economically viable aquaculture module. McMullen has traveled extensively gathering information for the project and has designed a working fish production unit for a relatively small capital investment.

The aquaculture program was developed by The National Council for Agriculture Education, a partnership between education and agriculture involving more than one-half million students and 12,000 teachers. The council is the leadership organization for agricultural education.

Lyme Disease Protection

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — As you head to the great outdoors for spring and summer recreation, what is your risk of contracting Lyme disease? How can you prevent infection by the Lyme-carrying deer tick?

The answers to these and other questions about Lyme disease are provided in a newly released Penn State video titled "Outsmarting the Deer Tick."

"Although Lyme disease should not be taken lightly, the potential for acquiring the disease is extremely low if you follow current recommendations," said Penn State entomologist Steven Jacobs, who helped develop the video. "We hope to inform the public of the risks associated with Lyme disease and recommend strategies to deal with those risks."

Jacobs said outdoor and wildlife groups, scout troops, health care providers, and other organizations will find the video useful in educating their members and clients.

The time to plan strategy for Lyme disease prevention is now, Jacobs said. "Ticks become active by mid-May and continue to be a threat throughout the summer."

The video gives advice on prevention and personal protection, tick control in the backyard, and Lyme disease and pets. It also covers symptoms, difficulties in diagnosing the disease, the appearance and ecology of the deer tick, and other topics.

Jacobs is one of three Penn State researchers conducting a three-year survey of Lyme disease in Pennsylvania. Now in its second year, the survey is designed to map the distribution of Lyme disease in the state. The goal is to develop a program to advise the public on the risks associated with outdoor activities in various habitats.

The researchers ask that Pennsylvania residents assist in gathering data by taking any ticks they find, dead or alive, to their local Penn State Cooperative Extension county office. The extension office will send the tick and a completed questionnaire concerning where and how the tick was found to the University Park campus for the researchers to analyze.

Jacobs said preliminary statistics indicate that three areas of the state appear to have the heaviest concentrations of ticks: the southeast, from Philadelphia to Dauphin County; parts of Elk, Cameron, and Clearfield counties, including Moshannon State Forest; and Presque Isle in Erie County.

Pa. Vegetable Growers Fund Research Projects

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Five research projects, all to be conducted at The Pennsylvania State University, will receive a total of $23,121 in support from the vegetable industry.

The Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program will be contributing $13,000 and the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association will be contributing $10,121.

The Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program is a statewide marketing order established under the Agricultural Commodities Marketing Act of 1968. All growers with one or more acres of vegetables for sale (or 1000 square feet of greenhouse vegetables) pay an annual assessment to the program.

Besides funding research, the program also has developed the highly successful "Pennsylvania Proven Produce" logo to help identify and promote Pennsylvania grown vegetables.

The five research projects funded and their objectives are as follows:

Vegetable Disease Control - Dr. Alan MacNab, extension vegetable pathologist - $7,000. Objectives: 1) To assess the effect of rotation on time of disease development for muskmelon and tomato. 2) To assess value of resistance to early blight in a new line of "greenwrap" tomato grown under several fungicide timing programs. 3) To identify an early blight defoliation threshold on tomato. 4) To evaluate tolerance to fruit rot in major processing tomato varieties grown in Pennsylvania. 5) To maintain and operate the early blight FAST forecast system in several areas of Pennsylvania. 6) To relate fungicide-application timing to harvest-time within a snap bean white mold forecaster. 7) To evaluate current pumpkin varieties for tolerance to fruit rots.

Trickle Irrigation Scheduling and Fertigation Methods for Vegetable Crops - Doyle Grenoble, horticulture research associate and Richard Cole, extension potato specialist - $5,424. Objectives: 1) To compare the effects of trickle irrigation to no irrigation on yield and crop quality for peppers. 2) To develop a model for scheduling time and amount of irrigation applications based on soil moisture and weather conditions. 3) To compare two methods for scheduling fertigation applications for crop response and use efficiency.

Minimizing Nightshade Problems in Solanaceous Crops in PA -

Michael Orzolek, extension vegetable specialist - $4,000. Objectives: 1) To develop chemical strategies which will eliminate the competitive effects of nightshade in Solanaceous crops. 2) To evaluate and identify alternative herbicides which would effectively control Eastern Black and Hairy Nightshade in tomato and also could receive a future Section 18 label for Pennsylvania growers in the future.

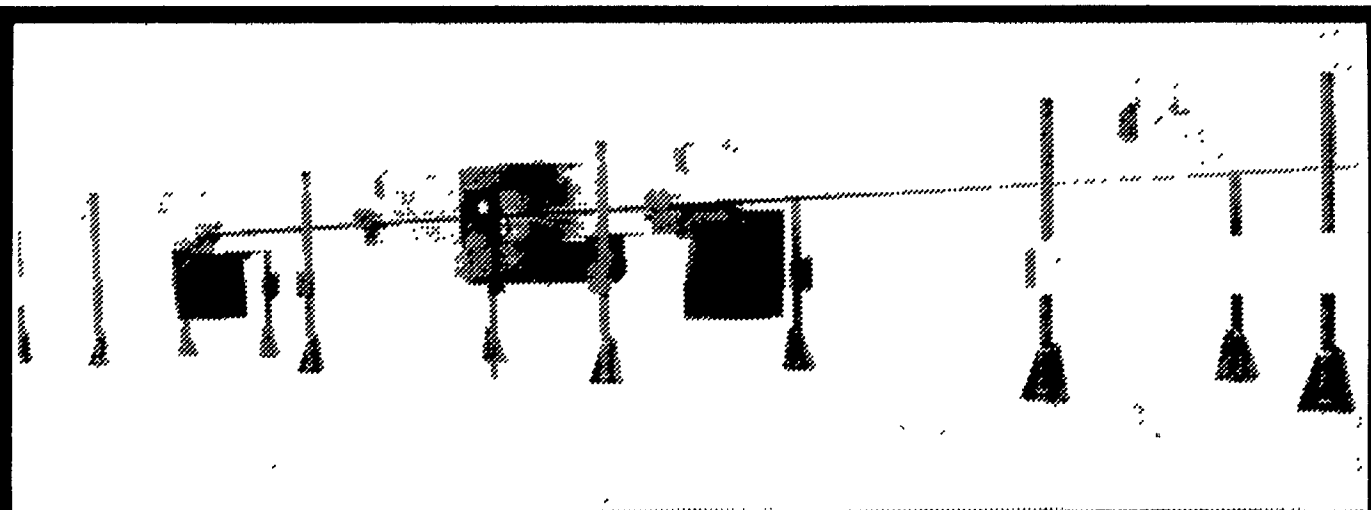

IPM Control Strategies for Greenhouse Whitefly, Sweet Potato Whitefly and Western Flower Thrips - Paul Heller, extension entomologist; Alan Michael, extension agent; Michael Orzolek, extension vegetable specialist; Alan MacNab, extension vegetable pathologist; Cathy Thomas, research technician; and Lynn Hinds, communications specialist - $2,797. Objectives: 1) To monitor western flower thrips on greenhouse tomatoes and other greenhouse crops, because they are the major vector associated in the spread of the pathogen that causes tomato spotted wilt virus disease, and to determine the effectiveness of predators release in a commercial greenhouse. 2) To develop methods of monitoring the effectiveness of the parasite wasp, Encarsia formosa, to control greenhouse whitefly and sweet potato whitefly populations in greenhouse crops, and identify periods of time when environmental conditions favor pest development.

Banded Fertilizer Rates for Tomatoes as Related to Liming - Cyril Smith, professor emeritus of plant nutrition; and Peter Ferretti, extension vegetable specialist - $3,900. Objectives: 1) To determine the highest rates of N and K that can be banded without causing toxicity. 2) To show how this banding is related to lime type. 3) To demonstrate to growers that all needed fertilizer can probably be banded if a good liming program is followed.

Patz 8700 Shuttle Feeder provides direct drive

The Patz center-charged Shuttle Feeder offers positive drive for sure starting. An instant-reverse motor connects directly to a worm-gear reducer that transfers power to the drum-cable drive.

A pin-type torque limiter prevents torque overload. The drum-and-cable drive pulls the shuttle back and forth.

A wide 16-inch belt distributes high volumes of feed.

Mounts easily in bunks or on ceilings, making it ideal for in-barn feeding. Optional swivel spout pivots to feed two rows of cows.

Optional diverter allows split-lot feeding in bunks.

New Patz Mixer

- Unique central spiral circulator
- No bearings inside the mixer drum

Fewer working parts make the Patz Mixer reliable (only 3 grease fittings).

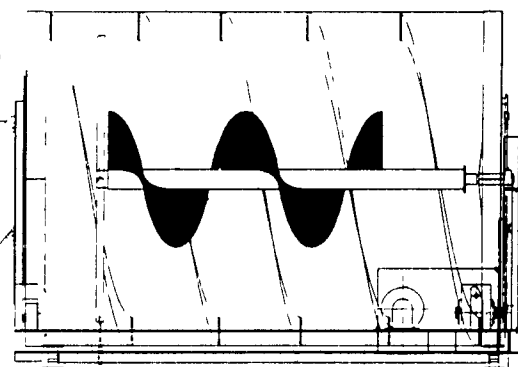

As the drum rotates, the central spiral circulator moves feed to the back of the mixer. At the same time, the flitting bolted to the drum in a spiral design moves the feed to the front as it mixes with a tumbling action.

DE LAVAL

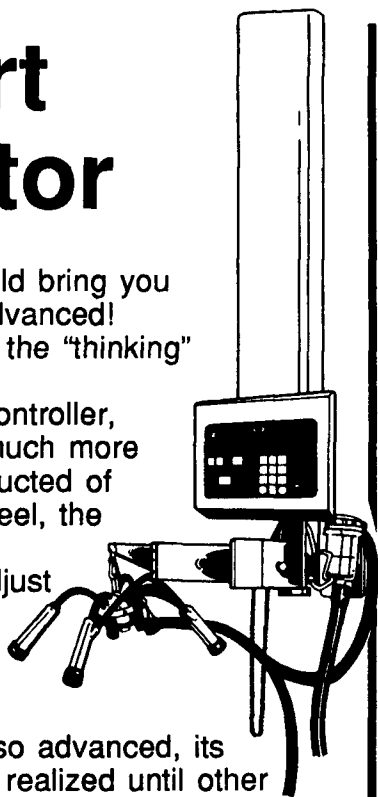

Smart Operator

Only De Laval could bring you a take-off unit this advanced! Introducing PLATO™, the "thinking" stall controller.

We call it a stall controller, because PLATO is much more than an ATO. Constructed of gleaming stainless steel, the unit's sophisticated electronics let you adjust the timing of each milking function to milk faster, easier, more efficiently.

In fact, PLATO is so advanced, its full potential can't be realized until other technologies catch up in the future. That's like buying equipment that continues to upgrade itself!

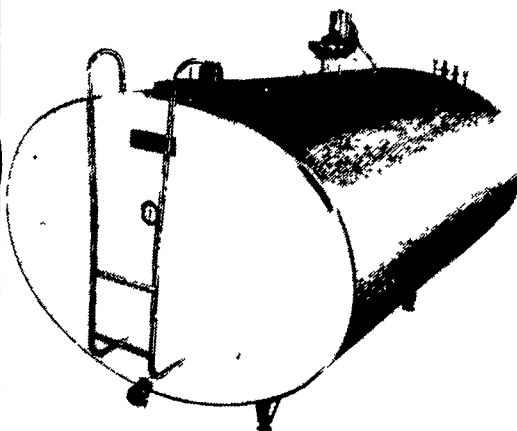

So whether you need the reliability of an arm-type stainless steel take-off or want the most advanced technology for your parlor visit your De Laval dealer and learn all about the smart operator.

Build Your Future with the Best

Century™ Bulk Milk Coolers -

The most energy - efficient cooler you can buy!

High Performance In An Economy Car

If you operate a stallion or tie-stall barn, the De Laval Feed Car is the most cost-effective way to improve your herd's efficiency and your farm's performance.

The Feed Car helps you feed cows "less and often."

With this method, each cow eats less, yet converts more of what she does eat into milk and butterfat. And because it's a healthier way to feed, you'll see fewer rumen upsets and foot problems.

Best of all, the Feed Car reduces your labor. It works automatically to improve your profitability. And it's so efficient, the system typically pays for itself in 18 months or less!

So if you're interested in increasing your milk and butterfat production while reducing feed and labor costs, ask your De Laval dealer about the Feed Car. He'll be happy to show you our full line of high performance models.

HAPPENINGS

Lancaster 4-H Day Camp

The 4-H program serves more than 4,000 youth in Lancaster County throughout the year. The traditional program has long been recognized for its excellence with rural youth but we are equally as competent in the urban sector.

From May until August, the Lancaster County 4-H program will be providing nutrition, citizenship, and self-esteem building programs to Lancaster City youth between the ages of 8 and 12.

The programs will be built around the 4-H foods and nutrition curriculum. This curriculum emphasizes proper nutrition for youth, preparing healthy and good tasting snacks, and food handling and safety procedures.

By combining time and talents with the YWCA, Girls Club/Boys Club, Girl Scouts, City Housing Programs, and the Salvation Army, we will be able to make this program available to approximately 300 youth, which includes every elementary school in the School District of Lancaster.

As part the Lancaster 4-H citizenship and self-esteem building curriculum, there will be a day camp on Thursday, July 18, 1991 at Williamson Pavilion in Lancaster County Park from 10:30 a.m. to 12 noon. This activity is the culmination of our summer program.

Lycoming Dairy Team In 3d

The Lycoming County 4-H Junior Dairy Judging Team placed third in the Penn State dairy judging contest held recently at Penn State.

Other team members were Melissa Daly, RR 1, Muncy; Shane Kitzmiller, RR 1, Unityville; and Jeremy Stackhouse, RR 1, Muncy.

Senior 4-H Dairy Judges were Shannon Peterman, RR 1, Muncy, placing 25th and Adam Fraley, RR 4, Muncy.

Coaches were Janet Stackhouse, RR 1, Muncy and Nancy Jarrett, RR 2, Montgomery.

Gloucester County 4-H'ers

Gloucester County was well represented at the annual New Jersey 4-H Public Presentation Day at Rutgers University, June 8, said Judith S. Baillere, county 4-H agent.

A total of three local 4-H'ers took part in the event, competing in the animal health and care and small animal categories. They all achieved ratings of "excellent" in the county competition held March 3, 1991. The 4-H'ers who competed were Kim Cianciola of Westville, Sherri Lafferty of Sicklerville, and Deborah DeEugenio of Glassboro.

Some 150 4-H'ers from all over New Jersey participated.

Adams County 4-H Members At Camp

There is nothing like the fresh air and outdoors! This is what 51 Adams County 4-H members learned at overnight 4-H Camp.

Camp was held at Camp Eder near Fairfield on Tuesday, June 11 through Friday, June 14 with 4-H members from Franklin, York, and Adams counties attending.

While at camp, 4-H members enjoyed sleeping in four-man covered wagons, swimming, and workshops ranging from hiking to air pistols to crafts. The camp was designed for 8 to 13-year-olds.

The camp was conducted by county extension staff and volunteers. 4-H teens served as group counselors and workshop counselors. Fourteen counselors were from Adams County. The first night of camp, the counselors presented a program to the campers, which involved skits and songs.

ADAMS COUNTY GIFT TO NATIONAL

Adams County 4-H senate members Beau Ramsburg, Gettysburg; Dan Ludwig, Gettysburg; Travis Green, Gettysburg; and Amy Miller, New Oxford, presented a $500 gift to National 4-H Council for an auditorium chair at the National 4-H Center in Washington, D.C.

Baldwin Will Purchase Assets

KEARNEY, Neb. — Baldwin Filters has signed a letter of intent to purchase the assets of Heavy Duty Air (HDA), Minneapolis, Minn., for an undisclosed amount of cash.

HDA was founded in 1981 by Weir Beckon, former head of Donaldson Company's aftermarket business. Beckon will remain with the company. HDA's 1990 sales were approximately $5 million.

HDA primarily serves the heavy-duty aftermarket, providing air filters for over-the-road, highway, construction, agricultural, and mining equipment markets. HDA sells more than 1,000 different types of air filters which, combined with the current Baldwin Filters air filter line, will give Baldwin Filters a complete range of air filter products for both time maintenance and restriction charge elements.

Because of production capacity constraints at its Kearney plant, Baldwin Filters is constructing a manufacturing facility in Gothenburg, Neb. Air filters will be produced there when the facility becomes operational. As a result of the acquisition of HDA, the Gothenburg facility will be doubled in size to 100,000 square feet, and HDA will be moved from Minneapolis to this new facility. To maintain the current high level of customer service, all filter distribution will continue to be handled at the Baldwin Filters facility in Kearney.

Breeders Affect Young Stock Performance

Kenneth Goodwin

Breeding birds can affect the performance of the young stock in a variety of ways.

Both the male and the female parent contribute to the genetic composition of the progeny. How this factor affects the performance of the young stock will of course depend on the genetic status of the breeders. If a genetic selection program has produced genetically superior breeding stock, this superiority will be transmitted to the progeny.

In addition, the female parent can affect the progeny performance in two other special ways.

If the mother is herself inbred, it is likely that traits such as hatchability and early livability will be adversely affected. The evidence of this is especially strong in mammalian species which have to support a gestation period and nurse the young. In general, inbred females do not make good mothers.

Other traits, called maternal effects, are those for which there is a known effect of the female parent transmitted through the egg although not on the genes. Examples would be pathogenic organisms and/or antibodies against pathogens. When these are transmitted to the progeny from the breeder hen they can have a major effect on performance of the progeny.

Another example of a maternal effect is egg size, which has been shown to have a strong relationship to the size of the chick at hatching and to later growth rate.

- Where appropriate, carry out a genetic selection program.
- Unless you have some very good reason to do otherwise, avoid inbreeding in your breeders.

• Provide a management program which will minimize the likelihood that pathogens will be egg-borne, and maximize the likelihood that desirable effects (e.g., passive immunity, good egg size, etc.) will be transmitted to the progeny.

CAN INDEPENDENT TURKEY PRODUCERS SURVIVE?

Milton Madison
Assistant Professor
Agricultural Economics

Independent turkey producers are a difficult group to describe because of their independence. The purpose of a business is to allow the owner to structure it in a unique way that meets their needs and preferences.

A recent Lancaster Farming article, "Turkey Products Change," (June 1, 1991, page B40) detailed some of the ways turkey production and consumption have changed over the last 30 years. Contracting of turkey production has allowed large firms to develop standardized methods of production that have proven to be quite efficient.

Independent producers that have not made adjustments to their businesses over time face at least three difficulties: (1) Traditional seasonal production patterns that produce turkeys only for holiday periods do not allow the producer to use equipment and buildings year-round. (2) Production practices in large contract operations allow lower mortality levels than were common years ago. (3) Use of slower growing breeds for larger or better looking whole birds increases feed usage.

All of these factors increase production costs. The costs for a typical contract turkey producer in Pennsylvania, as developed by Penn State University, for a 10,000-bird capacity house is presented below. It is assumed toms can produce 4.5 groups per year in a 30,000 square foot grower house and hens 6.5 groups per year in 20,000 square feet.

EXPENSES

Variable Costs
Repair and Maintenance	$ 3,975	$ 3,975
Electricity	3,500	3,500
Auto, Truck, Tractor & Misc.	3,500	3,500
Total Variable Costs	10,975	10,975
Fixed Costs
Taxes and Insurance	4,900	4,900
Generator	950	950
Equipment	5,950	7,100
Total Fixed Costs	24,300	28,850
Total Costs	35,275	39,825

These are the production cost levels that independent producers have to compete against.

Recent market trends have been working against the traditional independent producer. Fewer people are knowledgeable cooks today and are not comfortable preparing whole turkeys. Smaller household sizes and smaller holiday gatherings also discourage preparation of whole birds. These factors make it more difficult for producers to get premiums for high quality or heavier birds. If turkeys must be sold through a broker, a premium price that covers additional production costs is even less likely.

If independent turkey producers are going to survive in the very competitive turkey market, they must blend their production and marketing plans so that they can get a premium for any less efficient market season so premium whole birds are only available at holiday periods, when consumers are willing to pay extra to get the best birds. The most efficient production practices must be used to stay competitive.

The new model 450 batch mixer from A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc. can handle as much as 250 cubic feet of forage, grain, and other ration ingredients. The new mixer has 33 percent more capacity than the company's previous best-selling mixer.

Batch Mixer Handles Big Chores

DEKALB, Ill. — A new batch mixer that can handle up to 250 cubic feet of forage, grain, and other ration ingredients has been introduced by A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc., headquartered here. The model 450 mixer has 33 percent more capacity than the company's largest previously available mixer, the popular model 441.

The new feed management tool is scaled to bring the benefits of total mixed rations (TMR) to larger dairy or beef feeding enterprises, according to Rick Jones, the company's sales manager for ag products. He said that many progressive livestock farmers are switching to TMR feeding programs, which allow them to use available feeds more efficiently and have the potential to improve livestock performance.

The 450 mixer has four aggressive augers to blend rations quickly and thoroughly. The two bottom augers counterrotate for robust mixing action, and are notched to "grab" forage and even break up small amounts of baled hay. The augers are driven by a heavy-duty chain drive running in an enclosed oil bath. A 10 to 15 h.p. motor is required.

The mixer's bottom and side-walls are lined with glass-fused-to-steel, the same rugged material used to make Harvestore feed storage structures. The glass coating provides a barrier against silage acids and helps resist abrasion. The smooth surface also lets ingredients flow easily, thus increasing mixing efficiency. When rations are ready to feed, the mixer can be emptied easily and quickly by a convenient bottom door with remote power control. This design feature also gives the new mixer the versatility to work in a variety of feedroom layouts.

The model 450 batch mixer can be ordered with an economical beam scale, or an electronic digital scale to bring state-of-the-art management to the feedroom. The beam scale can weigh up to 6,000 pounds.

The new mixer is available through authorized, independent Harvestore system dealerships in the U.S. and Canada.

MOLINE, Ill. — John Deere is making available a free videotape on round baler safety and the operation of large round balers equipped with compression rolls for owners of John Deere Model 410, 500, and 510 balers.

The video, produced by John Deere with assistance from Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., North American Seed Division, is intended to remind original and subsequent owners of these balers, which were manufactured between 1975 and 1982, about safe round-bale practices and proper operating procedures.

Tests Rate Fan

LANSING, Mich. — Aerotech's 48-inch ventilation fan for livestock buildings was the top-rated fan in independent tests on fan efficiency commissioned by the Wisconsin Farm Electrification Council, suggesting large potential energy savings for producers.

Based on test data, Aerotech was rated 21 percent more efficient than the second-place fan and would save producers more than $4,000 in energy costs alone during a 10-year period in a typical tunnel-ventilated hog house.

The Aerotech 48-inch fan has an airflow of 23,900 cubic feet per minute (CFM) with an efficiency rating of 23.4 CFM/watt. Although the second-place fan has

Mixers Balance Feed Program

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Total mixed ration (TMR) feeders are now available from DeLaval, a Kansas City-based dairy equipment supply company.

TMR mixers from DeLaval are available in truck, trailer, and stationary models in sizes ranging from 190 cubic feet through 810 cubic feet. They feature a unique four-auger design that effectively and economically combines feed ingredients to provide a balanced mix for any herd. Each auger is notched, so long-stem hay can be handled easily. Augers are also flanged to make removal as simple as possible.

According to Mark Juett, marketing manager for DeLaval, TMR mixers are the perfect foundation for any feeding system.

"TMR mixers provide the balanced feed base to meet each herd's requirements," said Juett. "Then, by using DeLaval's computerized RationMaster® feeding system, the base feeding of top producers can be supplemented with an Individualized Concentrate Feeding (ICF) program.

"By using the TMR mixer along with an ICF program, dairy-men can really have the best of both worlds. The mixer saves time and money up front and the ICF program ensures that each cow receives just enough feed to stay at her optimum production level.

"As a result, dairymen have a feeding system that enables them to get the perfect balance between practically and efficiency. And that's a combination that's sure to have a positive impact on their productivity and profitability."

DeLaval TMR mixers are the best built on the market today. Bodies are welded solid and feature ribbed-frame construction for lasting strength. Welding also prevents feed from getting in cracks, eliminating the danger of aflatoxin. Optional 304 stainless steel liners can even be added to the mixer body to prevent premature deterioration and virtually eliminate corrosion.

DeLaval's mixer line was developed with a planetary gearbox speed-reduction system, so very little maintenance is required.

When maintenance is necessary, however, major drive components are readily accessible to make it as easy as possible.

Every DeLaval TMR mixer comes equipped with a J-Star® scale. Complete with its three-year warranty, this top-of-the-line scale sets the industry standard for reliability.

What's more, mixers can be custom built to meet individual requirements. Dairymen can choose from a wide range of optional features to design the mixer that meets their needs perfectly.

The new line of TMR mixers is available through independent DeLaval dealers nationwide. DeLaval dealers provide complete training on the equipment and any future assistance that's required. In addition to feeding equipment, DeLaval dealers provide a full line of dairy equipment and supplies.

a slightly higher airflow of 25,000 CFM, it is much less efficient at only 19.3 CFM/watt. All fans were tested at 0.04 inches of static pressure with shutters and guards attached and cones in place.

The test results were published in "Agricultural Ventilation Fans Performance And Efficiencies" by bioenvironmental and structural systems laboratory, department of agricultural engineering, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign with support from the Wisconsin Farm Electrification Council.

"New materials, innovative manufacturing techniques and design breakthroughs all contribute to the outstanding fan performance," said Robert Mitchell, Aerotech president. "It starts with our proven airfoil propeller. But it also takes attention to a lot of little details that we've perfected over 40 years to get this kind of efficiency."

In a typical tunnel-ventilated breeding or finishing swine barn requiring 120,000 CFM, five Aerotech 48-inch fans operating 4,000 hours per year for 10 years would save $4,360 per building just in energy costs at $0.10/kw-hr. based on the test data. Over 10 years that's a savings of $872 per fan over the second-place fan.

One of the big advantages of the Aerotech fan is a precisely engineered, circular discharge cone that smooths airflow and reduces back-pressure to boost capacity by 12-17 percent.

HANDLING AND STORAGE OF BIG BALES OF HAY

I have made a few bales of hay in my lifetime, and it always bothered me to remember the effort and the cost it took to get the hay to the cows, only to see it brown, weathered, and being wasted. Fortunately, there are some alternatives in storage and handling to help prevent these losses.

There are several methods of storage of big bales of hay available to cattle feeders. These include conventional harvest and outside storage, bale wraps, bale bags, and barn storage.

Each of these methods has its advantages and disadvantages, but the major points of consideration are maintenance of hay quality and cost.

Conventional harvest of big bales and storage outside with no consideration for hay loss is, of course, the cheapest method of storage. However, feeders should realize the other costs of this type of storage, particularly the loss in feed value.

It has been well documented that bales stored outside on the ground will lose fully 30 percent of their initial feed value. To put this in perspective, for every three bales stored outside in June, one of the bales is lost by January.

If the value of this lost hay is considered, is it really the cheapest way to store hay? Losses can be reduced by 10-15 percent for outside storage by doing two things:

covering the bales with plastic or a tarp, and storing them off the ground on pallets or rock. The latter factor may be the more important one since more hay will be lost against the ground than will be lost from rain damage to the top of the uncovered bale.

Wraps for bales are in two forms, including complete, mechanized wrapping used in making a high-moisture bale, and a plastic sleeve which leaves the end of the bale exposed. The complete wrap is costly, often being $5-$8 per bale. However, the advantages of wrapping are twofold: there will be little loss of feed value in storage and the hay can be made much more quickly (at 40-60 percent moisture) and reduce the chance of rain damage. Producers find the May and October cuttings, which often suffer rain damage, can be successfully harvested and stored.

The wrapping equipment is expensive, but there are custom operators available to conduct the job. The plastic sleeve generally costs about $3, but again there will be only slightly more storage-loss compared to the complete wrap. However, using the sleeve also implies the hay must be harvested at conventional moisture levels.

Producers also find they must be careful to expose at least six inches of the each end of the bale to prevent bale moisture being trapped against the hay inside the sleeve.

A major disadvantage of the wraps is the disposal of the plastic. It is generally unusable when the bale is opened and is disposed of in the conventional solid waste stream in the community. While the investment appears high, the maintenance of feed quality (especially of high-quality hay) and efficient use of the forage resource on the farm can offset the cost.

For example, a complete wrap costing $8 per bale would be cost-effective when conventional bales are worth about $24 or more. For the sleeve, wrapping would be effective when bales were worth about $30 or less. Bale bags have been shown to be effective in maintaining hay quality, even when harvested at higher-than-normal moisture levels. The cost will be $3-$4 per bale, but does not require a custom operator.

The bags are available from many sources. Some reports have indicated the bags require more precise handling of the bale, particularly not allowing any holes to be made in the bag. They must be applied to the bale correctly, and stored out of direct, hot sunlight after going through the "heat." Moisture will collect in the bags and damage the hay where it accumulates.

Hay made at levels of 20 percent or more moisture will develop considerable mold on the outside of the bale. The plastic must also be disposed of properly, though some bag manufacturers state the bags can be reused.

The best long-term method of storing big bales of hay may be a pole barn. Storage losses of bales stored in a barn will be about 3-4 percent. What is the cost effectiveness of a barn? One example shows that a barn to store 400 big bales stacked three bales high would need to be 40 foot by 80 foot in size. A barn this size can be constructed for about $5 per square foot. However, a savings of 25 percent of the hay per year compared to outside storage indicates the building will pay for itself in the fifth year when hay is worth about $75 per ton. The barn can also have multiple uses, such as at calving time and as a place to store equipment. The option also exists to use such a facility for self-feeding the hay by erecting feeding gates on tracks or rollers at one end of the barn and allowing the cows to eat through the stack on their own.

It costs too much these days to make quality hay that loses its feed value or is wasted by cattle. Some consideration of proper method of harvest and storage of the hay to provide the most efficient use of forage on the farm is necessary.

Soybean Producers Benefit From Credit Package

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — U.S. soybean leaders say they're delighted at the announcement recently that nearly one-third of the first installment of the recently-announced $1.5 billion package of credit to the Soviet Union may be used for the purchase of soybeans and soybean meal.

"We've been working with Soviet officials and livestock producers for more than five years to demonstrate the advantages of soybeans and soybean meal," said American Soybean President

Merle N. McCann. "Our efforts are obviously paying off."

"The allocation of funds confirms what we've been hearing from the Soviets for some time — they need our soybeans and soybean meal. The Soviet market has always been important to the U.S. and this indication that the Soviets are eager to purchase soybeans simply underscores that importance," said McCann.

Of the $600 million in credit guarantees available at this time, $117 million is available for protein meals and $70 million for soybeans. The credit is under the Commodity Credit Corporation's Export Credit Guarantee Program (GSM-102) for fiscal year 1991.

"We believe the credit to the Soviets is good both for the U.S. soybean farmer and for the Soviets who are in desperate need of protein-rich soybean meal to increase the efficiency of their livestock production operations," said McCann.

Newspaper Bedding Can Burn

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Chopped and shredded newspaper has proven to be an effective and inexpensive bedding material for dairy cows, but it also is very

in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

"Two recent fires in Vermont resulted from careless actions in barns with chopped newspaper," Graves said. One fire was ignited by an electric dehorner placed on the bedded surface. The other was caused by a spark from a welder.

"In both cases, the barns had just been bedded with fresh, chopped newspaper. The resulting bed was fluffy and dry, perfect for cows to lie in, but also just right to allow rapid spread of fire through the stall areas.

"Powder extinguishers slowed the fires, but weren't successful in putting them out," Graves said. He said that most powder extinguishers are designed to fight class B and C fires — those involving electricity, flammable liquids, and grease. Paper and wood fires are class A.

"The best thing to have if newspaper starts burning is water — and lots of it," Graves said. "Water is the single best extinguisher for wood and paper products. A simple water hose, pressure water fire extinguisher, or backpack fire pump is much better than powder extinguishers to fight a fire in loose or chopped newspaper."

One of the newspaper bedding fires in Vermont was put out with a nearby water hose.

Graves said that newspaper is still a good, inexpensive choice for animal bedding. "But be extra careful with sparks, flames, and glowing hot devices around loose newspaper," he said.

Also be sure to have suitable fire fighting equipment available. "When welding or cutting around chopped or loose newspaper, keep a water hose nearby, or several buckets of water, with someone ready to use them immediately in case of trouble," he said.

Pork Producers Watch Canadian Imports

DES MOINES, Iowa — The National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) is disappointed that the extraordinary challenge committee ruling recently will lead to the removal of the countervailing duty on Canadian fresh, chilled, and frozen pork.

The committee announced that it will not overturn the actions of the binational panel that forced the International Trade Commission (ITC) to reverse its two previous opinions that imports of subsidized Canadian pork product threaten to injure the U.S. pork industry.

"The fact still remains that the Canadian government directly guarantees net income margins for its pork producers while U.S. producers are totally at risk in the marketplace," said NPPC President John Hardin. "We still believe that the use of the duty is justified, and we should have prevailed based on the merits of the case. However, the extraordinary challenge committee members used an exceptionally narrow standard in their review."

NPPC will continue to monitor Canadian pork imports, Hardin said. "We expect no short-term increases because pork inventories are currently low in Canada," he said.

"The federal tripartite program is the underlying problem which has caused friction between Canadian and U.S. pork producers," Hardin said. "If subsidized Canadian imports increase dramatically, the U.S. pork industry will consider initiating further trade actions."

NPPC requested the extraordinary challenge review because NPPC and the ITC believed that the binational panel departed from a fundamental rule of procedure and exceeded its authority. Both the binational panel and the extraordinary challenge procedure were established under the U.S./Canada Free Trade Agreement (FTA).

U.S. Trade Ambassador Carla Hills' call for the extraordinary challenge review on March 29 marked the first use of the procedure that was also established under the FTA. The extraordinary challenge committee consisted of three retired judges — two Canadian and one U.S.

The United States imposed the countervailing duty on fresh, chilled, and frozen pork in September 1989. A separate duty on subsidized Canadian live hogs remains unaffected by the extraordinary challenge committee's ruling.

The pork product duty has had a significant positive affect on U.S. pork prices while it has been in place, according to University of Missouri Agricultural Economist Glenn Grimes. The duty likely increased U.S. pork producers income by as much as $118 million, or 55 cents per cwt., in the 12 months after it was imposed. "The return on the investment could be as high as $100 for every $1 invested in the case," Grimes said.

Because the 3-cent (U.S.) per pound duty will be lifted, U.S. Customs will be required to return the more than $18 million in pork product duty with interest that it has collected since September 1989.

What Is Happening In World Poultry Markets?

Milton Madison
Assistant Professor
Poultry Science
Penn State

A recent report, "The Role of the South in the United States Poultry Trade," by Stephen Ford gives us some insight into the world poultry market of today.

World poultry production has more than doubled since 1975. It reached an estimated level of 35.7 million metric tons in 1990.

The United States has maintained its share of world production, at a relatively constant 30 percent, over the 15-year period.

The European Economic Community (EC-12) has had steady production increases over this time period, but not as rapid. Their share of world production has fallen to 17 percent in 1990 from 25 percent in 1975.

The Soviet Union shows a similar pattern of production growth with its share of world production falling from 10 percent to 9 percent.

Brazil has had the most dramatic increase in production. Nearly six times as much poultry was produced in 1990 as in 1975 and Brazil's share of world production increased from 3 percent to 6 percent.

Along with the rapid growth of poultry production has been a tripling of trade in poultry products. The EC-12 has been a major exporter of poultry. Much of their trade is within Europe, which means that the EC-12 is also a major importer. When trades within the group are eliminated, the net exports average slightly more than for the U.S. over the fifteen-year period, and net exports were more than for the U.S. from 1981 to 1986. Eastern Europe, also a major exporter of poultry, has had net exports averaging slightly less than for the U.S. with exports from 1982 to 1988 exceeding the level of U.S. exports.

Brazilian exports were 27 times as large in 1990 as in 1975. Currently more than 10 percent of production is exported. Brazil has gone from exporting less than one-tenth as much poultry as the U.S. in 1975 to exporting over one-half as much in 1990.

Japanese investment in processing facilities in Thailand and China have helped them enter the export market recently and each command about 5 percent of the export market in 1990. Thailand supplied 37 percent of the Japanese poultry imports in 1990, slightly more than the U.S. (35 percent). Brazil and China each supplied about 12 percent.

Exports of meat from the United States are a small part of production. The red meats, (beef, pork, and lamb) all have less meat exported than is imported for domestic use — imports are about two and a half times as large as exports. Poultry product net exports for 1990 were 6 percent of broiler production, 4 percent of mature chicken production, and 1 percent each of egg and turkey production. These proportions seem small when compared to grain exports. In 1989 the U.S. exported 63 percent of wheat production, 30 percent of corn production, and 32 percent of soybean production.

Broilers dominate the U.S. poultry exports, representing 63 percent of the value of all poultry exports. Whole broilers are a small part of exports, over 80 percent of broiler exports are cutup portions. The export market has provided an outlet for dark meat that is not as popular here at home. Leg and thigh meat has been popular in Oriental markets because of their preference for more flavorful meats, and with the Soviet Union because of the low price. Eggs make up 13 percent of poultry exports, live poultry 11 percent, and the combination of feathers, turkeys, and processed meats 13 percent.

The United States Department of Agriculture predicts that U.S. exports of broilers will be lower in 1991 than in 1990. Sales to most countries are expected to increase slightly, but last year's leading buyer, the Soviet Union, is expected to reduce purchases substantially due to hard currency credit constraints. Credit guarantees of $25 million from the U.S. helped finance purchases of grain and 57 million pounds of chicken earlier this year, but the prospects of further credit and what would be bought with it are uncertain at this point.

Japan has historically been the largest buyer of U.S. broilers and eggs. In 1989, Japan purchased 24 percent of all U.S. poultry exports. About half of all U.S. poultry exports go to Asia. In addition, Mexico, Canada, and Caribbean nations have been consistent importers of U.S. poultry products. Growth in exports to Canada should continue as trade restrictions are reduced under the Free Trade Agreement. The Middle East is seen as a potential growth area for exports, this year, as production in that area has been disrupted by the Gulf War. Export Enhancement Program funds will be necessary to serve this market because of competition from subsidized exports from the EC-12, particularly France and the United Kingdom.

U.S. turkey exports go primarily to Canada, Mexico, and Asia. West Germany, Egypt, and Taiwan have purchased U.S. turkey on a more sporadic basis.

Increases in domestic poultry meat consumption will protect the poultry industry from major impacts because of export market changes. Increasing world production will provide additional competition for U.S. producers, but less restricted trade in general and the opening of markets in Eastern Europe should provide some new opportunities for trade.

NCGA Applauds 'Fast Track' Extension

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) recently applauded Congress for approving the extension of "fast track" negotiation authority.

NCGA was the first commodity organization to endorse the Mexican Free Trade Agreement, which was announced at its annual meeting in Kansas City in February 1991.

Randy Cruise, a Nebraska corn grower and vice president of governmental affairs for NCGA, said that the action to turn back attempts to block an automatic extension gave hope to increased international markets for U.S.-grown corn.

"NCGA recognized at an early stage that market development and successful trade talks with Canada and Mexico as well as at GATT represent important markets for US corn farmers," Cruise said.

"We know that the key to profitability for U.S. agriculture lies in making markets for our products, which are needed around the world."

Cruise said that NCGA had been an active supporter of an extension in many other ways.

"Our Washington office was included in a White House meeting with President George Bush. Our president, Jack Kintzle, a corn farmer from Coggon, Iowa, and our Washington representative gave testimony before Congress, and we conducted a 'Grassroots' campaign among membership," Cruise said. "We also were part of a coalition that placed an ad in the 'Washington Post' urging extension of 'fast track.'"

Cruise said NCGA will continue to support efforts to improve access to world markets for U.S.-grown corn.

CAUTION KIDS THEY CAN'T CUDDLE LIVESTOCK

Dr. Richard Barczewski
U. of Delaware

Sometimes livestock producers are asked to allow school tours of their farms. These tours go a long way to educate non-farm youth about agriculture. They also offer an opportunity to teach children about the potential dangers of farm livestock.

School-aged youngsters are attracted to farm animals. From birth on, parents give their children a range of cute and cuddly stuffed animals, which may engender the mistaken notion that farm animals are harmless and huggable. Unfortunately, this is not the case, so children must be warned not to approach an animal without adult supervision.

The first reason farm animals can be dangerous is sheer size. Consider the following table of weight ranges for several farm animal species.

SPECIES	SEX	AGE	WEIGHT (lbs)
Cattle	bull (M)	mature	1500-2500+
	cow (F)	mature	800-1400+
	calf	birth	65 and up
Sheep	ram (M)	mature	150-375
	ewe (F)	mature	125-250
	lamb	birth	8 and up
Swine	boar (M)	mature	300-1000+
	sow (F)	mature	300-800+
	piglet	birth	and up
Horses	stallion (M)	mature	1000-2000+
	mare (F)	mature	900-1800+
	foal	birth	75 and up

Most farm animals are born relatively small, but grow to be very large. A youngster romping around unsupervised among livestock could have tragic consequences. Imagine, if you will, a 1,000-pound cow standing on a child's foot — the results could be disastrous.

Children are often drawn to baby animals since these most resemble the plush toys the youngsters are familiar with. But this attraction can place a child in a dangerous situation since she or he could be perceived as a threat by the young animal's mother. Cattle and sheep routinely defend their offspring by charging and butting the intruder. A young child could be gravely injured or killed by a blow inflicted in this way. Swine can bite, horses can kick, chickens can peck, and rabbits can bite threatening intruders.

Children should not be left unattended around farm animals. Not all farm animals are dangerous in every situation, but care must be exercised around livestock. Petting barns and supervised farm visits by school classes are good ways for youngsters to become familiar with farm animal production.

Children should be warned about wild animals also. Since wild animals can carry fatal diseases such as rabies, alert children to the danger. Let them know that it is unnatural for wild animals such as raccoons, skunks, foxes, and ground hogs to approach a human. Instruct children to inform their parents or teachers if they see a strange-acting wild animal that does not run from an approaching human.

Incorporating this information into a talk the next time non-farm folks visit your farm will help them to appreciate and respect the potential danger of being around farm animals.

USDA Announces Sign-Up Provisions

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Provisions for the eleventh Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) sign-up, July 8-19, were announced by Secretary of Agriculture Edward Madigan.

Madigan reminded producers the July CRP sign-up will be their only opportunity to offer bids that will be applicable to the 1992 crop year and that acreage accepted based upon these bids will be limited to approximately 1.1 million acres.

Acreage offered for enrollment must be land-planted or considered planted to produce an agricultural commodity in two of the five crop years from 1986 through 1990. The cropping history requirement may be considered set, under certain circumstances, with cropland planted to alfalfa and other multi-year grasses and legumes grown in rotation and also in connection with acreage designated either as Acreage Conservation Reserve or Conservation use for Pay during those five years.

Many provisions which applied to the 10th CRP sign-up held this spring are applicable to the July sign-up, Madigan said.

"Under the CRP, the estimated environmental benefits obtained per dollar of cost to the Commodity Credit Corporation are evaluated when bids are considered," Madigan said.

"Therefore, producers should not rely on bid amounts which have been accepted in previous sign-ups since each producer's bid is compared to the productivity capability of the acres offered," he said. "Producers who wish to enroll acreage in the CRP should be aware that there is increased competition."

The provisions of the Food, Agriculture, Conservation, and Trade Act of 1990 have expanded land eligibility requirements from past years to include not only highly erodible land, but also other cropland acreage which reduces the impairment of water quality or improves public well-head protection. Special consideration will be given to designated hydrologic unit areas, which are determined to be a source of water quality problems, and designated conservation priority areas.

In addition to increasing water quality benefits under CRP, practices requiring useful-life assessments of 15 or 30 years such as filterstrips, sod waterways, shelterbelts, and contour grass strips also are given special consideration in the bid evaluation process.

Further details are available to producers at their county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices.

Tobacco Farmers Fear Tax May Cut Need For Product

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Pennsylvania's tobacco farmers are working long and hard hours in the field, tobacco plants are slowly flowering due to this year's prolonged drought, and the success of the tobacco harvest (in the fields and in the state house) is still in question. Basically, there's no joy these days in the smokeless tobacco fields of Pennsylvania.

That's because Governor Casey has proposed a 30 percent tax on smokeless tobacco. The fear among tobacco farmers is that this tax means fewer sales, and fewer sales means loss of jobs, revenue, and livelihood.

"When you say smokeless tobacco, you say Pennsylvania, and it's unbelievable that the governor is trying to balance the budget on the backs of hard-working smokeless tobacco growers," said Claude Martin of Lancaster Leaf.

This tax proposal, part of Governor Casey's latest initiative to resolve Pennsylvania's $3 billion budget deficit, is presently being debated in the state legislature.

The fact is this tax would only generate less than 1/2 of 1 percent of the revenue needed to resolve the deficit. Meanwhile, Pennsylvania's smokeless tobacco farmers say they've been unjustly singled out by the governor to solve a problem that lawmakers have created.

"I've always been willing to pay my fair share, but my fair share seems to be never ending," said William Snively of Lancaster, a fifth generation tobacco farmer.

"My family has worked the land and raised smokeless tobacco since the 1800s. This tax not only threatens our family tradition, but it endangers my livelihood as well," said tobacco farmer Dave Johnston, while taking a break from his field.

"The human element is the most important element of this tax proposal," said Johnston. "Raising the tax endangers a way of life that Pennsylvania smokeless tobacco farmers have known for generations."

Pennsylvania's smokeless tobacco industry is built upon the family tradition and hard work of its tobacco farmers. It's tough, mostly hand work, from the preparation of the seedbeds to the morning of auction. It takes more than 250 man-hours to grow and harvest a single acre of tobacco leaf. And modern technologies have done little to change the family farmers' cultivation of the crop since the 17th century.

Tobacco is one of the few crops that gives Pennsylvania's family farmers something to do year-round. Tiny tobacco seeds are planted in the late fall, with only one in four actually growing into a strong plant. In the springtime, tiny 5-6 inch tobacco plants are pulled by hand to be transplanted. With about 8,000 tobacco plants growing on an acre, transplanting takes the family farmer a considerable amount of time. But it's nothing compared with the time and work involved in harvesting, curling, and storing the crop. During the fall, mature stalks are cut by hand, stripped and stored in the family barn.

The benefits of hard-working Pennsylvania family tobacco farmers continue to be witnessed at the state's treasury. The tobacco industry employs more than 85,000 Pennsylvanians and bears a grossly disproportionate share of the state's tax burden. In 1990, federal and state government collected $2.2 billion in tobacco-related revenue. Much of this burden, $510.8 million, was paid out in excise and sales tax alone.

"There's nothing quite like providing for your family by waking up at 5:30 a.m. every morning, putting in fourteen hour days, and finally seeing a bountiful crop of tobacco that you've cultivated and nurtured from a tiny seed," said Johnston.

If Governor Casey's smokeless tobacco tax passes, those days could become faint memories. Johnston simply states: "I am a good husband and father, I give to the community, I pay my taxes. I do all the things that a hard-working American is supposed to do. And Governor Casey wants to put me out of business, I don't understand it."

Cash Receives Advising Award

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dr. Erskine H. Cash, professor of animal science in Penn State's College of Agriculture, received the 1991 College of Agriculture Alumni Society's Excellence in Academic Advising Award.

The award recognizes advisers with outstanding skills in academic advising, individual student goal setting, career planning, and personal counseling. Advisers in the College of Agriculture are nominated by alumni, faculty, students, and administrators.

As past coordinator of advising for the dairy and animal science baccalaureate degree program, Cash's responsibilities included recruiting prospective students, orienting new students to the program, assisting other student advisers, and maintaining a file of summer and full-time employment opportunities.

"I can think of no other professor more deserving of this recognition than Dr. Cash," said Kenneth Winebark, associate extension agent in Lebanon County, in a letter supporting Cash's nomination. "His guidance, friendship, and generosity have had a tremendous impact on my life and the lives of many others."

Other nominees for this year's excellence in advising award were Dr. Robert O. Herrmann, professor of agricultural economics; James W. Hilton, associate professor of agricultural engineering and education; and Michael D. Orzolek, professor of vegetable crops.

Increase in protein harvested	+ 44.2%	+ 39.7%

By baling hay at a higher moisture, there is less leaf loss and the result can be more dry matter and more protein harvested per acre

PLYCO Doors, Windows, And Roll Door Tracks

All Panels (Many Colors) Available With 3 To 7 Day Delivery

PLY-FOIL is a very efficient form of insulation. In application after application it has proven to be extremely effective at controlling heat gain/loss, thus significantly reducing heating and cooling costs. PLY-FOIL Insulation uses an aluminum foil to reflect up to 97% of the radiant heat.

PLY-FOIL BENEFITS

PLY-FOIL products are clean, lightweight, and non-toxic; are unaffected by changes in humidity; do not shrink; and once installed require no maintenance. They do not promote the growth of fungi or bacteria, and provide no nesting support for rodent or insect pests. PLY-FOIL, which has a Class A/Class 1 fire rating, meets the fire and smoke safety requirements of most federal, state and local building codes.

Some dogs
at nothing.

If you ever thought about giving your dog the run of the yard, but couldn't see putting up a big fence to do it, a DogWatch™ Hidden Fence System could be what you're looking for.

DogWatch™ keeps an "eye" on your dog by transmitting a harmless radio signal through a hidden boundary wire. A special receiver collar then warns the dog when it gets too close.

Find out more about DogWatch™ Hidden Fence Systems by calling us today.

Experience... The Wrangler 2000-OH Inexpensive. Not cheap.

The Wrangler Model 2000 OH represents a new level of value in livestock trailers.

Its standard specifications, top quality components and proven engineering are found in other Wrangler models. But the new 2000 OH is less expensive. By standardizing height and width and by limiting the number of optional accessories, Eby lowers the production costs for this model. Now you can get all our traditional craftsmanship in a top value gooseneck.

Unlike other 'budget' trailers on the market, the Wrangler 2000 OH achieves a price breakthrough without compromising quality. Consider these features, standard on the new Wrangler 2000 OH:

- 7,000# Dexter Torque-Flex axles
- Steel-belted radial tires, 10-ply rating
- Aerodynamic, attractive design
- Sealed beam lights with enclosed, externally accessible wiring
- 2-year warranty

Specifications

- Available in 14', 16', 18', 20' lengths
- 7' Width
- 6'6" Inside height

Special introductory pricing.

Penn State Offers Master Gardener Program

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)— If you have a little free time, you can become one of the most skilled gardeners in the county. The Lancaster County Cooperative Extension is planning a Master Gardener Program to be held throughout this fall. All you need in order to apply is a genuine interest in gardening.

"The purpose of the program is two-fold," said Bruce Hellerick, horticulture agent. "First, we would like to make you the best general horticulturist possible. At the same time, we want to better serve Lancaster County by using your new skills and talents to help teach the people of the county."

Educational sessions are scheduled for a 11-week period beginning on August 19. Sessions will meet on Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster.

Topics to be taught during the course include:

- Plant science
- Entomology
- Soil science
- Plant pathology
- IPM/pesticide safety
- Pruning theory
- Turf culture
- Communications
- Plant propagation
- Woody ornamental selection and care.

In addition, you will be expected to attend a Saturday workshop in early spring.

In return for the course and workshops, you will be asked to volunteer 50 hours of your time to the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension. This year we are seeking volunteers who have a particular interest in the following areas:

- Idea garden (work with other Master Gardeners to develop and maintain the Idea Garden).
- Horticultural answering service (answer home gardening questions in person and by phone).

• Horticultural office staff (maintain materials for office files, notebooks and computer).

• Exhibit coordinator (develop exhibits that depict horticultural programs offered by cooperative extension).

• Meet the plants (provide educational programs on plant botany, identification, culture and care to youth in elementary

At the end of your training and service, you will be awarded a Penn State Master Gardener's Certificate from Penn State's Dean of Agriculture.

It is important that you realize that this is a complete course and that all classes must be attended as part of the program, said Hellerick. Enrollment is limited.

Cost for the program is $25 payable upon acceptance. (This covers the cost of the handbook and name pin.)

A personal interview and pre-test will be scheduled in July once your application has been completed and returned.

If you have a real interest in gardening and would like to become a Master Gardener, contact Lancaster County Cooperative Extension, c/o Master Gardening, 1383 Arcadia Road, Room 1, Lancaster, PA 17601.

Extra Minerals May Increase Milk Production

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Recent research at the University of Florida indicates that increasing the concentration of certain dietary minerals may help dairy cows cope with the effects of heat stress, according to Florida's Dr. Barney Harris Jr.

"The work suggests that increasing the concentration of magnesium, potassium, and sodium above the guidelines set by the National Research Council will increase dry matter intake and milk production during hot weather," said Harris, a professor of dairy nutrition and a leading authority on heat stress in dairy cattle.

NRC recommendation for high-producing cows call for 0.25 percent magnesium, 1.0 percent potassium, and .18 percent sodium in the ration on a dry matter basis. Harris recommends increasing these amounts to .3 percent, 1.5 percent, and 0.4 to 0.6 percent, respectively, during periods of heat stress.

"The cows in the trials receiving the extra minerals produced two to three additional pounds of milk per day, for each of the three minerals tested," Harris said. "While the effects may not be additive, each of these minerals showed a positive response in milk production. They also exhibited fewer physical indications of discomfort than the control cows."

The higher levels of magnesium and potassium can easily be reached by increasing the amount of a complete mineral mix, he said. But to reach the high level of sodium, it may help to feed a rumen buffer.

"Sodium bicarbonate and sodium sesquicarbonate each contain around 27 percent sodium," he said. "Just feeding the recommended rate will boost sodium intake substantially."

Dr. Tom Sweeney, manager, animal research/technical services for Church & Dwight Co., Inc., recommends feeding sodium bicarbonate at 1.5 percent of the grain ration or 0.8 ounces per 10 pounds of milk produced per cow per day throughout the year. Either method of calculation will supply sodium at 0.27 percent of dry matter to a cow producing 100 pounds of milk consuming 50 pounds of dry matter, he said.

"This is roughly half the amount of sodium Harris recommends," he said. "Feeding sodium bicarbonate also may help cows cope with fluctuations in feed intake that often occur during heat stress."

Harris cautions that exceeding the NRC recommendations for these minerals only applies to rations for lactating cows. Dry cows receiving excessive mineral amounts may show a higher incidence of udder edema.

MILK. IT'S FITNESS YOU CAN DRINK.

Prepare For Next Year's Gypsy Moth

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.) — The gypsy moth feeding season has just about come to an end this year.

You may have experienced serious defoliation in your woodlot, especially if you have a high percentage of oak. Hopefully, the population of the gypsy moth was so large that they were stressed.

When the gypsy moth population is stressed, they are susceptible to fungal and viral diseases. You should check your woods and see if you can see dead gypsy moths hanging upside down from the branches. That is a good sign that these diseases have been at work. If you are lucky and the conditions were right, you will see lots of these dead caterpillars.

The extension office has received numerous calls from concerned woodlot owners about how and who can spray their woodlands for gypsy moth. These calls began in May and continued throughout the gypsy moth season. As most of those individuals discovered, this was too late to start thinking about spraying. In order to determine if your woodlot should be sprayed and to arrange for someone to spray, you should start this fall.

Since some species of trees are more preferred as food than others, the first thing you need to do is to learn how to identify the trees you have on your woodlot. Trees such as oak, aspen, birch, and basswood are favorite foods of the gypsy moth, while trees like ash, yellow-poplar, locust, and sycamore are not preferred foods.

Once you can identify trees, you should take a walk in your woods and try to determine what percentage of your trees are of the preferred food species, especially oaks. If you have more than 40 percent oak trees in your woods, your woodlot may be susceptible to defoliation.

If you have more than 40 percent oak, the next thing to consider is how much longer it will be until your trees are ready to be harvested. If you have more than 10 years until harvest, it may not be economical to spray your woods. The best way to determine if your trees are approaching harvest age is to have an up-to-date management plan for your woodlot that includes pest management considerations. If your woods will be ready to harvest within 10 years, you need to consider their condition. If, for example, they were heavily defoliated last year, spraying may turn out to be a viable option.

After these considerations, you need to walk your woods and count the number of egg masses on the trees. If you encounter 200 or more healthy egg masses per acre (not 200 in your entire woods), you have the potential for a gypsy moth problem next year.

You have now reached the point where you should decide to spray or not. This decision should be made by Christmas time. Remember, spraying is expensive, ranging from $16 to sometimes $50 per acre. A lot depends on how many acres you have to spray and what kind of aircraft does the spraying. You may want to meet with your neighbors and discuss having their properties sprayed also.

The more acres there are to spray, the less the cost per acre. If you decide to spray, you should then contact an individual or company that will spray your woods.

The extension office has a list of contractors that have sprayed in Pennsylvania in the past and may be willing to spray.

Whatever you decide to do, you should make sure you make the decision carefully and not panic when you see gypsy moths in the woods. It generally takes two or more consecutive years of defoliation to kill healthy trees. Also, remember that you will not eliminate gypsy moth. The insect is going to be with us forever and we are going to have to learn to live with it.

Research Supports Automatic Roller-Mixers

PENDER, Neb.— Automatic Equipment Manufacturing Company's new RollMix roller mixer units have been developed to perform in accordance with university research findings on the relation of grain particle size to livestock feeding efficiency.

The published research found that grain particles of proper size and uniformity are related to optimum digestion by livestock or poultry. Automatic's RollMix models provide this product uniformity without the production of ultrafine "flour" particles which can decrease palatability and cause digestive problems in hogs and cattle. This is done by using Automatic's "one-fast-roll" principle -- the rolls cut grain instead of crushing.

According to a booklet on the "First International Symposium on Particle Size Reduction in the Feed Industry" sponsored by Kansas State University, an added benefit with roller-mixers is a more uniform product with less dust or flour being lost to the wind or to dust collection systems, thus making the most of the material supplied to the mill.

In addition, symposium

research found that roller mills such as Automatic's 9115 and 9110 are able to process grain in feed manufacturing more efficiently than hammer mills. This is especially true for particle sizes of 700 microns or larger. At particle sizes of 1800 microns, roller mills are more than five times more energy effective.

Automatic's RollMix 9115 has a 150-bushel mixing tank and takes only 10 minutes to produce 150 bushels of feed. The RollMix 9110 has a 100-bushel mixing tank. Both are portable units, designed to service a wide range of livestock feeding operations.

Tractors as small as 80 HP can be used to operate the RollMix 9115, while the RollMix 9110 requires a minimum of 50 HP.

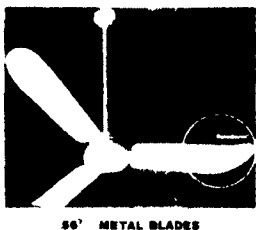

For more information, contact the Feed Processing Equipment Division, Automatic Equipment Mfg. Co., One Mill Road, Industrial Park, Pender, NB 68047, (402) 385-3051.

We're happy to announce...nothing. Nothing in finance charges And nothing in payments for 81-105 days, depending on your date of purchase. It's our 0.0% A.P.R. Financing Offer for Farm Plan Preferred Members. And it's available for any single invoice totaling $500 or more purchased with Farm Plan credit. (Multiple item purchases qualify for 0.0% financing* as long as the invoice is more than $500.)

So ask us about interest-free financing. If you're not presently a Farm Plan Preferred Member, stop by and fill out an application. After all, this offer of nothing is really something!

* All interest free purchases must be paid in full on the third statement following purchase. Otherwise interest will begin to accrue at the Preferred Member rate of 16.75% A.P.R. Preferred Member A.P.R. may be lower in some states.

FREE YOURSELF FROM SPREADER CHAINS AND SAVE MONEY

The proven Hydra-Spread design can free you from the grief and maintenance of spreader apron chains for good!

This low maintenance spreader features solid poly boards both on the sides and the floor for slippery, no-stick performance. Hydraulic push power replaces the extensive mechanism needed in ordinary spreaders.

Why pay more for yesterday's ideas and designs? The design of tomorrow is PRICED RIGHT and will be on the job for years. We deliver to your farm.

Axial-Flow Combines SIMPLY MORE PRODUCTIVE IN THE FIELD

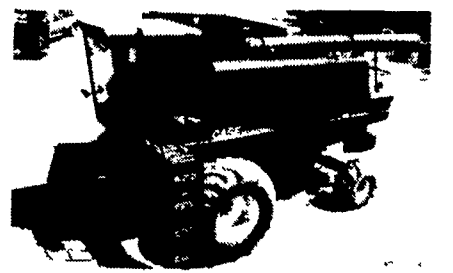

Over the past thirteen years the Case IH axial-flow combines have proven themselves to be more productive than the combines previously owned by our customers. In tall crops, short crops or down crops; bumper crops or drought crops the axial-flow combines put more crop in the bin and, therefore, return more market dollars to you. The Case IH axial-flow is simply more productive in the field where the bragging stops.

HOOBER: Axial-Flow production specialists

1. Every combine Hooper sells is started in the field by a professional combine mechanic; experienced in setting and adjusting for all common crops.
2. Hooper's professional combine mechanics drive fully equipped combine service trucks, stocked with commonly used wearing parts. When called to service or repair an axial-flow combine, they carry with them the tools and equipment to do the job and get you back to the field fast.
3. Hooper's Parts Department has the largest combine parts inventory in the East. Daily pick-ups at the Case IH Parts depot help to provide fast emergency parts availability. Hooper's expert combine PARTS service provides you minimum downtime and maximum productivity.

The Secrets To Case International Axial-Flow Combine Success In The East...

1. FEWER MOVING PARTS...

2. HIGHER QUALITY GRAIN...

3. ALL CROP VERSATILITY...

The one moving part in Axial-Flow's entire threshing/separating process is the single large-diameter rotor. Nothing more. No cylinder, beaters or straw walkers. There's far less that can break or need maintenance. That's Axial-Flow combine simplicity.

Axial-Flow helps bring top price at the elevator. It handles grain more gently. Less crackage and dockage. You'll combine higher moisture grain at faster ground speeds for a quicker harvest. That's Axial-Flow performance.

Axial-Flow Combines for every crop. Designed to harvest over 100 different crops including corn, soybeans, wheat, sorghum and others. All popular grain header sizes plus 4 to 8-row corn heads.

4. HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE...

HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE SPECIALISTS KNOW COMBINES.

For thirteen years Hooper's 5 combine mechanics have been working with Axial-Flow technologies. A COMBINE BOUGHT FROM HOOBER IS BACKED BY PEOPLE WHO KNOW AND CARE.

You've got a steep torque rise of up to 24 percent for great power reserve at 80 percent of rated engine speed

SUPER SAVINGS ON HARDI SPRAYERS

COMBI-3 and COMBI (Hy)

High-power units

The COMBI series of mist-blowers utilizes the turbo-fan blower concept which has a proven high performance record. COMBI models are built around a basic blower on which it is possible to mount different spout combinations: one spout, two spouts, or five spouts

Ideal for tall trees, or for one sided applications in very dense crops.

Shoot For Distance - Sweet Corn, Vegetable & Fruit Growers! LP/TP PNEUMATIC SPRAYERS

TP 250 Cannon
Pneumatic Mistblower
(Demo.) $6,200

The LP (mounted) and TP (trailer) pneumatic sprayers are an excellent choice for a wide range of spraying jobs. The pneumatic system uses low pressure nozzles combined with high air speed. Atomization takes place only when the air blast meets the liquid from the nozzle (air shear system). This ensures uniform coverage of the complete canopy even when spraying at very low volumes.

MINI-Variant A variety of uses

Foliage Treat Strawberries, Potatoes & Other Row Crops

The standard MINI blower has been mounted on a high for the Variant mistblower range and uses ten long flexible hoses with adjustable spouts mounted on a boom to maximize penetration in dense row crops such as strawberries, cabbage, carrots, beans, onions, brussels sprouts, potatoes, lettuce, pea nuts, celery, soybeans, cotton, nursery stock, etc.

This twin 20 hp is becoming very popular for hay balers and other applications traditionally equipped with 2 cylinder Wisc. engines and can also replace the older 4 cylinder engines on some applications.

This engine has been in use on hay balers for over 10 years and is doing a very good job. We can also mount Wisc. clutches or reductions on it for some applications. Fuel efficiency is very good.

Buy now while we still have this heavy duty engine. New model coming next year.

Umbergers of Fontana is your HARVESTING & HANDLING HEADQUARTERS

Variable chamber round baler

Depending on the type of baling you do, a variable chamber round baler may be your best buy. Features include Gehl "air-draulics," a system that gives you total density control (TDC®). It allows you to control the size of the bale core and the density of the outer wrap to build a bale that's just right for your crop. You get high quality bales that look good and store well. And you can operate your baler with lower horsepower tractors. Two models makes bales up to 5 ft or 6 ft in diameter. Gehl's optional dual twine Auto-Electric Wrap System ensures a uniform twine wrap automatically, bale after bale.

Gehl's revolutionary Auto-Max™ system is standard on the 1260, optional on the 1060. It lets you operate your harvester at top capacity, without fear of downtime due to overloading, so you get more harvesting done in less time. With both the 1060 and 1260, you save more time with features like the exclusive, patented one-side cutterbar adjustment and in-head hydraulic knife sharpener. Both machines feature a unique spinner delivery system instead of cross augers. Options include Gehl's Metal-Stop metal detector and haylage water tank. Designed for big tractors up to 300 hp, the 1260 is the highest capacity pull-type forage harvester available today. The 1060 is designed for tractors up to 200 hp.

Gehl front hydraulics plus power to spare let you handle all those big jobs with ease when you invest in one of these work-horses. Model 6620 has an SAE operating capacity of 2,050 lbs. with a 60 hp diesel powerplant. Model 5620 has an SAE operating capacity of 1,700 lbs. with a 56 hp diesel engine. Gasoline-powered Model 4510 and diesel-powered Model 4610 have SAE operating capacities of 1,150 and 1,225 lbs. respectively. They all feature easy-to-use hand controls, secondary operator restraint seat bar for comfort and safety, self-leveling lift action and roll-back ROPS for quick and easy serviceability.

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

EASY CARE BLOCKS

is a 22% protein block formulated specifically as a feeding supplement for dry cows and heifers. Available in 50 and 500 lb. blocks.

■ Weatherproof

Like its companion product, Easy Care Blocks stands up to all kinds of weather, so waste is minimal.

■ Highly Palatable — with Intake Limiters

Molasses-based for palatability but contains intake limiters to prevent over consumption when fed as recommended. Dry cows and heifers get what they need — no more, no less.

■ Balances Forages

Supplements forages to provide the balanced nutrition important to dry cows and heifers. Easy Care Block is formulated specifically to the nutrient requirements of dairy dry cows and heifers.

■ Self Fed

Saves both time and labor — especially on hard to reach temporary pastures.

■ Contains Vitamins-Minerals-Selenium and Magnesium

Meets Vitamin A and D Requirements when fed as recommended and supplies Selenium and Magnesium lacking in some forages.

■ How to Feed Easy Care Block

Control consumption at approximately two to three pounds per head per day by providing all the good quality roughage the animal can consume. Provide one 50-lb. block for each five animals or one 500-lb. block for each 25 animals. Locate blocks near where animals gather or near a water source. On large pastures, make blocks available at more than one location.

When blocks are first put out, or if animals have been out of blocks, make sure plenty of roughage is available to prevent over consumption. Always provide an unlimited supply of clean, fresh water.
